TRIBUTE TO DEAD — With Leatherneck casualties mounting in Vietnam, Navy Secretary Paul R. Ignatius paid tribute to the Marine Corps dead of all wars Friday in a ceremony at the Iwo Jima Memorial marking the 192nd anniversary of the founding of the corps. Kingston, along with other cities of the nation, paused today to honor its veterans, both the war dead and the living.

In ceremonies at 11 o'clock this morning in front of City Hall on Broadway a posthumous decoration was presented to the father of Boatswain's Mate Third Class Michael Peter Carr. Young Carr was killed in action in Vietnam last July. His father, Donald H. Carr of 12 Ora Place, accepted the award.

The Broadway ceremonies included participation by various veterans' groups including Joyce Schirck Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Kingston Post, 150, American Legion; Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League; the Catholic War Veterans and Company M of World War I.

Elsewhere, Veterans Day observances focus on the servicemen in Vietnam as the nation paid tribute with parades and speeches to the men and women who have served in the armed forces.

Meanwhile, in Washington, according to the Associated Press, Deputy Secretary of Paul Nitze, in the absence of President Johnson, was scheduled to be the principal speaker at Arlington National Cemetery.

Many veterans groups were to be on hand but the Veterans of Foreign Wars voted to boycott the observance to protest a Pentagon order that burials be restricted in Arlington because of the possibility the cemetery may run out of space.

Detroit readied its biggest parade ever, with American Legion officials prepared for a large turnout due to the Vietnam war "and the growing number of people who support our fighting men."

Some dissenters against the war began demonstrations Friday. In Nashville, Tenn., about 40 bearded pickets passed out statements protesting the war, and were handed bars of soap by some 100 students on the Vanderbilt University campus. The demonstrators were protesting napalm making by Dow-Corning Co., which had recruited on the campus. The soap was accompanied by a card reading, "This is a product of Dow-Corning. Use it."

At Johnstown, Pa., a flag goes up above Sandyvale Cemetery, to fly there day and night until the Vietnam war ends. A city official termed the flag "Johnstown's answer to the un-American demonstrations that erupted this year."

At Omaha, Neb., both pro and anti-Vietnam war demonstrators hold ceremonies. At Creighton University Friday night, services in the campus church were led by the Rev. Richard Spillane, S.J., a Marine veteran of the South Pacific in World War II. Of the 14,000 men killed in Vietnam, Spillane said, "they stand as heroes to those who knew and loved them."

New York City's five boroughs stage separate observances, with American Legionnaires stepping along in the traditional parade route down Manhattan's Fifth Avenue. Several antiwar groups hold demonstrations.

In Los Angeles, Mayor Samuel W. Yorty is the keynote speaker at the eighth annual international Sacred Torch ceremony in Hollywood Hills.

In Denver, Colo., parade permits included those issued to three antiwar groups. Safety Manager Hugh McClearn issued the permits, with a spokesman for the United Veterans Council commenting, "We would rather go along with this under these terms than have a scene."

For Peace Talks at Sea

LBJ Puts Challenge to Ho

ABOARD U.S.S. ENTERPRISE (AP) — President Johnson, marking Veterans Day aboard a carrier at sea, challenged Hanoi today to meet with American representatives aboard a neutral ship on a neutral sea to talk peace.

ABOARD U.S.S. ENTERPRISE (AP) — President Johnson, touring many of the nation's military bases, has called for national unity to win the Vietnam war. He says the United States must walk a tightrope between surrender and "World War III."

Grave and Sombre

The President left the White House Friday morning, flew to Ft. Benning, Ga., jetted across the country to visit with Marines and went to sleep after viewing naval exercises on an aircraft carrier anchored off San Diego, Calif.

Although met by large and enthusiastic crowds, the President's words and mood were grave and somber as he viewed training exercises, decorated Vietnam veterans and talked of the testing of the nation's "hopes and beliefs" on the anvil of the Vietnam war.

Eighteen Americans and 98 Communist troops killed in fierce battle near Dak To. See story Page 3.

He said it strongest at Ft. Benning where he told Army men and their families peace will come more quickly "when the enemy of freedom finds no crack in our courage—and no split in our resolve—and no encouragement to prolong this war in the shortness of our pa-trience or the sharpness of our tongues."

In California, he helped Marines celebrate the 192nd anniversary of the founding of their service—first at El Toro Marine Station where his plane landed and later at Camp Pendleton, 30 miles south.

Thousands of Marines and their families, gathered on the post parade ground, cheered as the President cut an anniversary cake and told them the only reason for U.S. involvement in Vietnam is to help that small nation defend itself from aggressors.

"You and I know," he told them, "that it is harder and tougher to ask for and achieve a restrained and limited victory. One could surrender—or start World War III—and do either without much help."

The only hope for honor, freedom and true peace, he said, lies in the "hard and true course between surrender and annihilation." This course, he said, "is the one we must steer."

Earlier, in Ft. Benning, Johnson noting 1,200 families of men serving in Vietnam live in the area, declared that for them and other families of Americans in Vietnam, the war is "no academic question. It is not a topic for cocktail parties, office arguments or debate from the comfort of distant sidelines."

Phinney Out, Seat For Perry

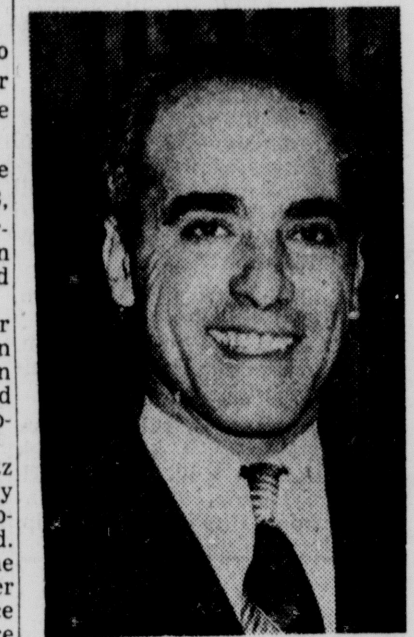

Samuel J. Perry won a seat on the newly formed Ulster County Legislature after the counting of absentee ballots revealed he had edged Robert F. Phinney for the last spot in the city.

Perry wound up with 5,426 votes, compared to Phinney's 5,354 in the final tally. Perry, along with 16 other candidates, ran at-large in Kingston for the county legislature. The former Fifth Ward alderman joins five fellow Republicans as representatives for the city. The other two are Democrats, former mayor William F. Edelmuth, who polled 6,040 votes and Orrie E. Riehl who had 5,442 votes.

Said Perry this morning in an interview with The Freeman, "I never gave up hope. I knew I still had a chance as long as the count wasn't official."

Perry was informed last night by Election Commissioner Joseph Epstein that he had won. The newest legislator, alderman from 1949-60, says he's in favor of a new court house and a county airport.

Melvin Mones was the top vote-getter in the county legislative race in Kingston with 6,269. Edelmuth was next followed by Clarence Raichle (6,026), Addison Jones (5,942), Wendell Scherer (5,930), John C. Sangaline (5,782), Riehl and Perry. Joseph Turck, a Republican, remained behind Phinney in the final tally with 5,349 votes.

Political Winds

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

THE MESSAGE is that the people of Ulster County like Republicans, and they liked Republicans more this year than during any other time in memory.

Political Observers Believe

Political observers believe there are a number of reasons for this, and although it may be difficult to gauge the strength of the reasons, it is not difficult to list them.

First of all, the Ulster County result demonstrates a disenchantment with the national administration. Secondly, the unpopular proposed Constitution was identified with the Democrats. Thirdly, the County Democratic organization proved to be ineffective in facing up to the task of making use of its possibilities. Finally with all of the above general factors working against the Democrats, the Republican tradition in the County demonstrated its strength once more.

Some Individual Factors

There were individual factors working against the top Democratic candidates also:

Strength and Ineffectiveness

Post-Mortem on Ulster County Election Day, 1967

JOHN J. SCHICK had to fight against the fact that Congressman Resnick did not want to see him win.

David M. Barnovitz, presented with what was perhaps the most devastating issue ever to be gift wrapped for a Democratic district attorney candidate anywhere, refused to commit himself fully to a campaign effort.

Arnold Banker and Ronald E. Newman would have had to have an almost incredible amount of money and an extraordinary amount of time in order to beat the Republican incumbents in races defined by their almost total lack of issues.

But the one intriguing factor is the ineffectiveness of the Democratic organization.

Had the Republicans lost badly it would probably have cost John B. Sterely his job as GOP County leader; the reason being that if Republicans lose badly in Ulster, something must be wrong with the leadership.

A Loss, But Holds Job

On the other hand, a bad Democrat loss will not cost Democratic leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman his job because many people will excuse him for his naivety, the fact that he was new to the job, the idea that it was a Republican year in a Republican county.

GORMAN PROBABLY realizes, however, that he has to accept some of the responsibility for the devastating defeat.

As previously mentioned in this column, the four top county candidates had been set adrift from the mother organization, without funds and, with one exception, lacking in direction.

That one exception was Schick.

Schick had his own organization along with a personal following of dedicated supporters who were willing to exhaust themselves for their candidate.

Schick, also as previously mentioned, went to all of the Republican political functions in the hope of picking up votes.

This was in stark contrast to Barnovitz who, as a young newcomer, could have picked up many more votes had he followed the Schick strategy of all-out exposure.

County Group Faulted

But it is the county organization which is charged with the task of establishing the tempo, the direction, and the logic of the campaign, and here was where they failed, and failed miserably.

ONE COULD be easily impressed with the amount of energy and talent that went into the Republican effort to elect C. John Bechtold mayor of Kingston. At least one press release was issued about every other day. The Wall Street campaign headquarters showed signs of activity every day of the week for three or more weeks. Besides the GOP city chairman working every night for his candidate, campaign manager George Svirsky was often there, late at night, discussing strategy or making up an ad. Writer Mike Black was also there, working with releases, giving advice, studying the newspaper clippings on the Garrahan record.

Nothing vaguely resembling this was evident with the four top Democratic candidates. The organization performed no such service and each candidate was left to his own devices.

As a result, a feeling of hopelessness was evident all along the line—with the exception of Schick—and nowhere was this more evident than with Barnovitz who may have had the strongest issue of any candidate of all the 62 counties in the state.

The Democratic organization will have a long time to view the ruins.

Your Life and Mine

BY CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

Some years ago a cruiser, along with several other ships, was anchored in a harbor in the Pacific. Quite suddenly a furious tropical storm descended. At the first blast of wind the captain sensed the danger and made a quick decision. He gave orders to hoist the anchor and steamed out to sea in the very teeth of the gale. The masters of the other ships, seeing him head out into the storm, thought he must be crazy.

Out there in the open sea they had a hard time of it. For two days there was considerable uncertainty as to whether the ship would survive the beating it was taking from the wind and the tumultuous waves.

Ultimately the winds abated. And when they sailed back to their mooring place, battered but intact, they found that all the other vessels which had stayed in the harbor were broken to bits and were lying in rubble upon the shore. Only the ship that headed out into the teeth of the gale survived.

We have a phrase: "face the music." We mean by this the kind of spirit which does not evade, or attempt to run away from reality. Costen Harrell has said that "there is no hope for a person as long as he will not admit the truth concerning himself." This is the place to begin in the effective mastery of life. For evasions hold no promise. They only get us into trouble. Sooner or later we must reckon with things as they are. We must, so to speak, head into the teeth of the gale. Confession of weakness is the first step toward strength. "A man's first care," counseled Joseph Addison, "should be to avoid the reproaches of his heart." A basic premise of faith is that we shall be honest with ourselves.

When John Milton lost his eyesight he did not give way to self-pity. No, he headed the ship of his life directly into the gale of his affliction, so to speak, and gave to the world his "Sonnet on Blindness." Who knows how many people since Milton's day have found courage and faith for their trials because this one man "faced the music"—and, with God's help, made something creative out of his handicap?

Your Life and Mine

BY CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

Some years ago a cruiser, along with several other ships, was anchored in a harbor in the Pacific. Quite suddenly a furious tropical storm descended. At the first blast of wind the captain sensed the danger and made a quick decision. He gave orders to hoist the anchor and steamed out to sea in the very teeth of the gale. The masters of the other ships, seeing him head out into the storm, thought he must be crazy.

Out there in the open sea they had a hard time of it. For two days there was considerable uncertainty as to whether the ship would survive the beating it was taking from the wind and the tumultuous waves.

Ultimately the winds abated. And when they sailed back to their mooring place, battered but intact, they found that all the other vessels which had stayed in the harbor were broken to bits and were lying in rubble upon the shore. Only the ship that headed out into the teeth of the gale survived. We have a phrase: "face the music."

We mean by this the kind of spirit which does not evade, or attempt to run away from reality. Costen Harrell has said that "there is no hope for a person as long as he will not admit the truth concerning himself." This is the place to begin in the effective mastery of his heart. For evasions hold no promise. They only get us into trouble. Sooner or later we must reckon with things as they are. We must, so to speak, head into the teeth of the gale. Confession of weakness is the first step toward strength. "A man's first care," counseled Joseph Addison, "should be to avoid the reproaches of his heart." A basic premise of faith is that we shall be honest with ourselves. When John Milton lost his eyesight he did not give way to self-pity. No, he headed the ship of his life directly into the gale of his affliction, so to speak, and gave to the world his "Sonnet on Blindness." Who knows how many people since Milton's day have found courage and faith for their trials because this one man "faced the music"—and, with God's help, made something creative out of his handicap?

Fair St. Honors 18 Confirmants

The elders of the Fair Street Reformed Church will be serving breakfast this Sunday morning to 18 members of the church's confirmation class and their families.

The overseers of the spiritual life of the church, the elders, have special responsibility for assisting in the development of Christian commitment among the people of the church, and this Sunday will be meeting with families of the confirmants to explain to them the importance of their children's undertaking. Each elder will be assigned to two students, and during the course of the year, will make himself available to the student for guidance, encouragement, and help. At the conclusion of the study course, the elders give the class a dinner at the Governor Clinton Hotel and an oral exam follows.

Mission Series Concludes With Sunday Service

Ex-Mayor Connie:

'I'm Champ, Not Ray'

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan's position as all-time plurality leader in Kingston mayoralty races was disputed today, and rightfully so, by former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman.

Garraghan was swept back into office by a 2,623 plurality over C. John Bechtold, the Republican, last Tuesday. He was immediately crowned the all-time leader. Not so, says former Mayor Heiselman, a three-time Republican winner. Heiselman routed Eugene B. Carey by 3,287 votes in 1939 for his third term.

Heiselman actually served four terms, less 10 days. Here's the story. "Connie" Heiselman was elected alderman-at-large over Sam Mann in 1931 by a scant 11 votes.

He was reelected in 1933 along with Carey. Mayor Carey was involved in a serious automobile accident in April and was hospitalized until October. According to city charter, Heiselman acted in the mayor's absence, but refused to take the mayor's $5,000 salary.

In November of 1933 Heiselman was once again elected alderman-at-large, under the administration of Harry B. Walker. Walker had the shortest term in history, resigning after 10 days on Jan. 11 because of ill health. Heiselman became mayor.

Heiselman beat William B. Martin for the mayor's post in 1935 by "about 1,600 votes."

I wish to thank all of the voters of the First Ward who exercised their precious right by casting their vote for the candidates of their choice on election day.

With deepest humility I wish to thank those who were responsible for my reelection to office.

I am fully aware of the responsibilities that will be mine as the Alderman of the First Ward — and as the first woman ever elected to the Common Council of our city.

I ask God for the health, courage and wisdom to justify the voters confidence in me.

Culloton was a very popular man."

Then came the landslide against Carey. Two years later, in one of the highest upsets in Kingston history, dark horse of Buffalo, William F. Edelmuth beat Heiselman by 272 votes.

Asked about that reversal in 1941 Heiselman said today at his Woodstock home, "We had an awful lot of confidence after that 1939 plurality. It just goes to show you can take nothing for granted in politics."

Winters in Florida

After his defeat Heiselman became an account for the New York State Finance Committee in Albany, then chaired by former Senator Arthur H. Wicks. The Wicks-Heiselman relationship endured for 15 years as the former Kingston mayor became administrative assistant to the senator when he became lieutenant governor.

Heiselman, now 76, retired in 1957 at the age of 63. He lives in Woodstock most of the year but spends the winters in Oakland, Fla. where he has served as treasurer and director of the Broward County Taxpayer's League.

October Crash on 275 Claims Its Second Life

The 40th traffic fatality for Ulster County in 1967 was recorded late Friday night at the Albany Medical Center, where Jay L. Thorn, 22, of 35 Montrepose Avenue, died as a result of injuries sustained in an Oct. 15 auto accident on Route 275 near Woodstock.

Mr. Thorn was a passenger in a car operated by 19-year-old Michael S. Andrews of Kingston who failed to negotiate a right curve, veered off the side of the highway and hit a tree.

Andrews was treated at Kingston Hospital and released.

Mr. Thorn was born in Beacon, a son of Harold and Margaret Cooper Thorn. He had made his home in Kingston for the past 12 years.

He served with the U. S. Army from 1962 until January, 1967, during which time he spent 13 months in Vietnam. He also served in Korea. At the time of his discharge he was a Specialist 4th Class.

Mr. Thorn was a member of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of the Moose, and was employed as a provisional fireman in the Kingston paid Fire Department.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his wife, the former Anna May Thomas; a daughter, Tracy Lynn Thorn; two sisters, Mrs. Lois Safran-sky of Yuma, Ariz., and Miss Priscilla Thorn of Kingston.

He is also survived by two brothers, Harold Thorn Jr. of Kingston, and William Thorn of Georgetown, Ky.

The funeral will be held at the Jensen and Deegan Funeral Home Inc., 15 Downs Street, Tuesday at 2 p. m., where the Rev. David C. Gaise, DD, pastor of Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will officiate. Burial will be in Montrepose Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 7-9 p. m. and Monday from 2-4 and 7-9 p. m.

His physician said Miss Jones had telephoned his home and said she intended to swallow some pills.

On College Council

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Cyril B. King, editor of The Buffalo Courier-Express, has been appointed to the Council of the State University College at Buffalo.

King, appointed Friday by Gov. Rockefeller, was designated for a term ending July 1, 1975, to succeed Paul P. Cohen of Buffalo, who retired. Members serve without salary.

Resnick Moves Up Departure For Vietnam

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick announced today that the departure date for his Vietnam trip has been moved up. He now plans to leave for the Far East Nov. 20.

He urged all those who would like him to take taped messages to American soldiers in Vietnam to record the messages before Nov. 17.

Tape recorders are presently available in Congressman Resnick's district offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Hudson. The hours between 3 p. m. and 5 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays have been set aside for recordings, and persons may come into any of the offices between these hours without an appointment.

Persons who would like Congressman Resnick to try to visit a relative or friend should provide complete identification of the serviceman, including the place where he is stationed. APO addresses are not satisfactory.

Bars Military Recruiting on College Campus

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — The president of the State University at Binghamton, protesting a proposal to draft students who interfere with military recruitment, has barred recruiters from the campus.

President Bruce Deering said in a letter to the Selective Service director, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, that student violence "cannot be condoned" but that civil law has "appropriate provisions for such violations."

Navy recruiters, scheduled to be on campus Monday, were asked to postpone their visit.

Hershey has recommended that any student or other registrant who violated the Selective Service law or interfered with recruiting be deprived of his deferment, declared a delinquent and drafted as soon as possible.

Anyone liable to the draft who was caught interfering with recruitment, he said, would be offered the choice of military service or jail.

The Selective Service Act states that a registrant may be declared delinquent and indicted for interfering with the draft process or otherwise violating the Selective Service law or regulations.

The regulations, however, do not specify violations for interfering with recruiters trying to enlist volunteers.

Jennifer Is Improving

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jennifer Jones, found unconscious in surf at the base of an ocean cliff near Malibu, was reported improving today in Mount Sinai Hospital.

"She's doing very nicely," a hospital spokesman said.

A son, actor Robert Walker Jr., was among her visitors.

Sheriff's deputies said Miss Jones apparently had stopped breathing but was revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

In her stomach, the sedative seconal and an alcoholic beverage were found at Malibu Emergency Hospital, authorities said. She was transferred to Mount Sinai Hospital where six hours later she regained consciousness.

Her physician said Miss Jones had telephoned his home and said she intended to swallow some pills.

Jailed on Shoplifting

Trooper John Kohlman arrested Charles Smith, 35, of High Street, Poughkeepsie last night in the Big Scoop Department Store on a charge of petit larceny and shoplifting. Smith pleaded guilty to stealing a coat valued at $10.40 before Justice Arthur Reilly of the Town of Ulster. He was sentenced to 30 days in the Ulster County Jail.

18 Americans, 98 Reds Killed in Fierce Clash

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. paratroopers and dug-in North Vietnamese troops clashed fiercely today in a battle that left 18 Americans and 98 Communist troops dead in the ninth day of fighting near Dak To in the central highlands.

The U.S. Command reported 96 paratroopers, from the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade, also were wounded in the day-long engagement.

Communists ambushed a U.S. armored convoy in the same sector and killed five Army engineers and wounded seven in a 15-minute fight. The engineers called in artillery support and 23 of the enemy died under the counterfire.

The clash occurred as other U.S. soldiers probed a hill near Dak To. North Vietnamese troops threw back a U.S. assault on the hill Friday and American artillery, gunship helicopters and warplanes then raked the hill repeatedly.

Monsoon rains sharply curtailed the air war over the North but carrier-based Navy pilots made radar-guided bomb drops on the Kien An airfield six miles southwest of Haiphong. Bad weather prevented damage assessment. And Navy A1 Sky-raidors sank or damaged 23

Communist supply boats and barges 22 miles south of Haiphong.

The fighting in the rocky central highlands 270 miles north of Saigon, near where Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam meet, reflects the same enemy determination that cost the Viet Cong about 900 dead in efforts to seize Loc Ninh last week.

In eight days of fighting around Dak To, U.S. officers said, 450 Communist soldiers have been killed. They listed casualties among the 4th Division and 173rd Airborne Brigade as 49 killed and 175 wounded for the same period.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett, noting that November has always been the war's bloodiest month, reports that fighting at the onset of this year's fall dry season is more widespread than in any other year.

"Initiative seems more important to the enemy than their casualties," he said, and quoted a Viet Cong political official as saying in Cambodia: "Our losses are not important. What is important at Loc Ninh was that we demonstrated we have the ability to attack, to gain the initiative when we want to."

At Dak To the North Vietnamese exposed their troops to a gunship helicopter to draw the chopper into range of hidden gunners, who shot it down. Three U.S. crewmen were injured.

U.S. intelligence estimates that two or more full regiments of North Vietnamese are concentrated in and around Dak To. Maj. Maurice Edmonds of Jacksonville, Fla., said: "We seem to have landed in the middle of the enemy and they don't seem intent on leaving the area."

South Vietnamese paratroopers reported killing 17 Communist troops late Friday just to the north of the U.S. artillery base at Gio Linh on the southern edge of the demilitarized zone. Government casualties were reported as light.

In the Mekong Delta, South Vietnamese rangers and infantrymen reported killing 80 Viet Cong and capturing 41 weapons in two clashes within a few miles of each other Friday, 112 miles west-southwest of Saigon.

At Kien Giang, a South Vietnamese infantry battalion suffered moderate casualties while 20 civilians were wounded in a simultaneous mortar attack on a government military training center nearby.

Warnitz of 734 Broadway, home of Wagner's Delicatessen, allegedly sold beer to a 17-year old minor. She was released in her own custody, police said, and is slated for a court appearance Monday. The arrest was made around 9:30 p. m.

McCarthy Word Due Next Month On Nomination

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The chairman of an organization backing Sen. Eugene McCarthy for president says the Minnesota Democrat will announce next month whether he'll oppose President Johnson for the party nomination.

James A. Harrison said McCarthy told Michigan Democrats privately during a round of meetings Friday that he would indicate his presidential intentions with an announcement in December.

Harrison, until recently the party's top public relations official in Michigan, announced formation of a "McCarthy for President" committee in the state.

He said the group was formed Friday in a meeting of about 50 Democrats representing 14 of Michigan's 19 congressional districts.

McCarthy, 51, has criticized the administration's policy in Vietnam and has said the war is "no longer justified on a moral basis." He is on a tour of four key states—Minnesota, Michigan, Massachusetts and Illinois—to gauge how much Democratic opposition there is to Johnson's policies.

Harrison said McCarthy attended the meeting Friday and said nothing to dissuade creation of the group. When McCarthy was asked whether he would discourage such booster groups, Harrison said, the senator replied he would not.

Ex-Mayor Connie:

'I'm Champ, Not Ray'

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan's position as all-time plurality leader in Kingston mayoralty races was disputed today, and rightfully so, by former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman.

Garrahan was swept back into office by a 2,623 plurality over C. John Bechtold, the Republican, last Tuesday. He was immediately crowned the all-time leader. Not so, says former Mayor Heiselman, a three-time Republican winner. Heiselman routed Eugene B. Carey by 3,287 votes in 1939 for his third term.

Heiselman actually served four terms, less 10 days. Here's the story. "Connie" Heiselman was elected alderman-at-large over Sam Mann in 1931 by a scant 11 votes.

He was reelected in 1933 along with Carey. Mayor Carey was involved in a serious automobile accident in April and was hospitalized until October. According to city charter, Heiselman acted in the mayor's absence, but refused to take the mayor's $5,000 salary.

In November of 1933 Heiselman was once again elected alderman-at-large, under the administration of Harry B. Walker. Walker had the shortest term in history, resigning after 10 days on Jan. 11 because of ill health. Heiselman became mayor.

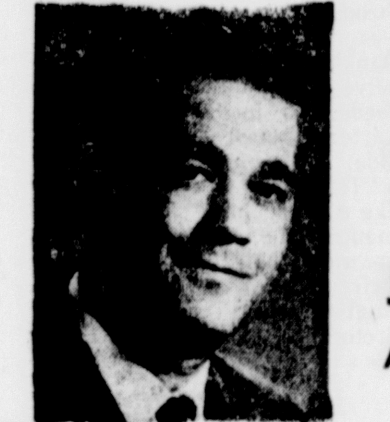

Heiselman beat William B. Martin for the mayor's post in 1935 by "about 1,600 votes."

Setback for Rifle Boys

The National Rifle Association isn't accustomed to defeat at the hands of Washington lawmakers or other officials, so its initial reaction to the cancellation by the Department of Army of next year's rifle and pistol matches was awkward, akin to a champion athlete suffering a stunning defeat and groping for words in trying to explain it. A top NRA official said that "if the action was necessary," his group would go along; but this is a "terrible blow to our program," and the NRA "regrets" the step; but, as if searching for some glimmer of light in the suddenly dark skies, he announced that Pentagon officials had "assured us" the cancellation was for next year only.

It is solid conjecture that some interesting things went on behind the scenes before the Army broke the news. The rifle association is a power to be reckoned with in Washington, and someone must have applied some white heat to force the brass to go against it. Where this heat emanated from isn't clear—but most people will cheer whoever did it.

Just why the taxpayers should be tagged with an annual cost of several million dollars to help the NRA stage its matches out at Camp Perry in Ohio has never been explained. If the rifle boys want to put on a shooting match, let them pay for their enjoyment just like every other group that chooses to sponsor some activity in which its members show an interest. The argument that the NRA was in effect giving training to men who might someday come to the rescue in the event of a public emergency or that it was an unofficial adjunct to the military establishment, is so much tommy-rot. Internal security is the business of government, and it's up to the government—not to any private group—to see the necessary men are equipped and trained.

Too long has the Pentagon linked itself with the NRA. It has had agreements with it in the sale of rifles and ammunition, and once even refused to sell surplus rifles to Detroit police unless the police first joined the NRA and paid dues.

The only regrettable aspect of the Army action was that it said the ban was only for 1968. It blames the Vietnam war and its budgetary and manpower demands. The cancellation should have been made permanent. Five million dollars of public funds has been going annually to the association, and war or no war, it should be halted. John Q. Citizen shouldn't be saddled with the bill to let 5,000 or so rifle lobbyists enjoy several weeks of target practice, with publicly paid Army personnel acting as their orderlies.

But this battle may not be over. Despite national revulsion at the ease with which deadly firearms may be obtained, and legislation to stiffen the procedure, you can buy guns as simply as you can buy a pair of shoes. That's because of the NRA lobbyist power. Once the NRA recovers from the shock of this defeat, you can expect it to fight back. The "Battle of Camp Perry" may only be beginning.

John Nance Garner

An unbroken era of nearly four generations of Texas political power in the nation was dramatized by the death of John Nance Garner, the "Cactus Jack" of American politics early in this century.

Garner was the first of three Texans who dominated the Congress beginning with his own election as Speaker of the House in 1931. He was elected Vice President from 1933 to 1941. It dovetailed with Sam Rayburn's election as Speaker in 1940 until his retirement due to illness in 1961. The team of Rayburn and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate Majority Leader, was succeeded by Johnson as Vice President, and finally Johnson's succession as President until this day.

In that span of 36 years, one or two of these men of Texas wielded the legislative power in one or both houses of Congress. No such concentration in any one state delegation had been seen before.

Garner lacked 15 days of becoming 99 at his death in Uvalde, Texas. Elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1898, he was to continue in politics until his retirement after serving two terms as Vice President in 1941, a span of 43 years. He broke with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, his chief, over the third term issue.

The last quarter century Garner watched the parade go by from his rocking chair, happy to see Texas interests forwarded by his proteges, first Rayburn and then Johnson. It has been a most satisfying retirement for an old political war horse.

The favorite son tactic is spreading among Republicans. The latest to announce is Senator Clifford P. Case, a liberal of New Jersey. He wants to hold his state delegation together and make it count for something. It also will enable him and other favorite sons of liberal leanings to bar a first ballot nomination they dislike, notably Richard M. Nixon's.

Bang, Bang!

Henry J. Taylor Says

Captain Dreyfus Case Recalled

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The month of November, 1894, memorializes a vital truth: If newspapers grow weak or soft, or supinely patronize a government in power, the public is imperiled. And in a Great Society Washington that baits the usual trap of "You scratch my back, I scratch yours" the date shouts a reminder that our press must never pull back from the independent, militant crusading thrust that makes a newspaper great.

During that memorable November Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, an artillery officer assigned to the French general staff under Gen. Auguste Mercier, the Minister of War, was tried for treason in betraying military secrets to Germany.

The court-martial—distinguished Col. du Paty de Clam presiding—sentenced Dreyfus to the horrors of Devils Island for life, the maximum punishment permitted.

It was not a deliberate plot to frame an innocent man, as sometimes reported. It was the outcome of a blunder after which the entire hierarchy of France's government fabricated and manipulated its own self-serving defense on a face-saving basis.

On January 13, 1898, Emile Zola published "J'ACCUSE!" France read an enraged and uncompromising man of courage, his defiant eyes as rich as jade in a face as pale as bread.

There were 31 newspapers in Paris. High officials are indispensable news sources. Patronizing them can pay off. Angering them can close the door to "inside" information, as true in Washington today as in Paris then.

Many Frenchmen somehow felt uneasy about the trial. The government insiders met this nervousness with what the French call suffiance, an unshakable, self-satisfied mien. But they also blunted the free press by holding what are now known in Washington as "backgrounders"—private meetings with selected newsmen to reveal unattributable background factors, a doubtful device at best.

These inadvertently exposed War Minister Mercier's suppression of evidence (a dossier later known as the "Secret File") that made Dreyfus's conviction questionable. Silence nevertheless prevailed. The issue had become the prestige of France's ministers and the army, and even the prospect of war with Germany, if the truth were known.

Silence was "patriotism," silence was "in the national interest," silence was "the duty of a responsible press"—as so often rationalized by embarrassed officials the world over.

Then came Zola in the newspaper L'Aurore.

Balzac once said, "Great writing lives on the passions it contains," and with these, Zola achieved newspaper immortality, in an open letter to the President of France.

In separate paragraphs, each beginning "I accuse," he specifically named two Ministers of War, Generals Mercier and Billot, as accomplices in Dreyfus's conviction, accused the chiefs of the general staff, Boisdore and Gonse, crime, and Col. du Paty de Clam of being their vehicle. He tore into the "backgrounders" of his day and accused the War Ministry of manipulating the news to mislead the people, "an abominable campaign performed on order."

The public was aghast. So were the chancelleries of all Europe. The belligerent Kaiser rattled his sword in Berlin. But nothing proved truer than Zola's classic ending to his assertions: "Truth is on the march and nothing will stop it."

The internationally dangerous case, which Zola had caused to symbolize invisible government gone bad, including its overtones of anti-Semitism, press softening and self-justification, was reopened. A retrial was held at Rennes. The whole world cared. Dreyfus stood again at the bar, a desiccated man from Devil's Island, a strange shred of jetsam barely able to speak or understand what was spoken to him. The expanded official cover-ups collapsed with the fall of the government itself.

On July 13, 1906, the eve of Bastille Day, almost 12 years after Dreyfus's arrest, a bill to restore him to the army carried in the French Chamber by 442-32, and Dreyfus was promoted to the rank he would otherwise have reached and was decorated with the Legion d'Honneur.

Zola had died four years earlier. He did not live to see the full power of the truth and, in fact, had been driven into exile in England by the vindictive government. But at his funeral Anatole France spoke the just and noble epitaph of the man who "for a moment... was the conscience of mankind."

Soviet Union Is Sharpening Its Attack on Red China

By DON OBERDORFER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—On the eve of its 50th birthday celebration, the Soviet Union sharpened and broadened its attack on Communist China, and Moscow's version of the Chinese "yellow peril" threat makes Secretary of State Dean Rusk sound like a piker.

The last Russian propaganda blast—emanating from its embassy in Bangkok, Thailand—accuses China's leaders of "taking practical steps to carry out their aggressive aims to establish their supremacy in Southeast Asia."

The attack, in the form of a newsletter article by Prof. M. Ukrainsev, says the Chinese have their eye on Mongolia, Korea, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Burma, Thailand, part of India, the Ryukyu Islands and the Sulu Islands in the Philippines.

This is part of a Soviet propaganda drive, dating back at least to mid-summer, which has gone so far as to call China a "yellow dragon" threatening her neighbors.

The Russian-Chinese feud is nothing new. But the increasing harsh charges by Russia of Chinese "expansionism" in Asia appears to be a new wrinkle.

The "Yellow Dragon"

The "yellow dragon" image was invoked in one of the early evidences of the Russian drive, a Radio Moscow broadcast to Rumania on July 21. "China," it said, "is turning once again into that yellow dragon which, just as during the old Chinese dynasties, is ready to pounce on its weaker neighbors."

The broadcast denounced "outright subversive activity" by Chinese diplomacy in Mongolia, North Korea, India, Nepal and Burma. "The peoples and the governments of the states bordering China," it said, "must be very vigilant so that they do not become prey to the wanton chauvinists who increasingly advance along the paths of adventures in the realm of foreign policy to overcome the isolation in which they find themselves."

In October, Soviet journalist Ernst Henry wrote in the Literaturnaya Gazeta of Moscow of a "great strategic plan of Mao Tse-Tung" for the conquest of Asia. He dubbed it "Mao's Reich."

Henry, who has been touring the troubled Soviet-Chinese border areas, said that in its first stage China's plan embraced Korea, Mongolia, Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Indonesia, Malaysia and Burma.

He said the second stage would bring Chinese expansion into Hindustan, Soviet Central Asia, Soviet Far East and the Near East.

"It is not yet completely clear what is foreseen for the third stage on paper," Henry wrote—but he added ominously that the semi-official People's Daily of Peking says "China today will be the whole world tomorrow."

While raising the alarm about Chinese expansionism in Asia, the Russians have been stepping up their own diplomatic and political activity in the area, including the establishment of relations with Malaysia; a Soviet journalists' tour of the Philippines; increasingly close official contacts with Japan;

and strenuous (and successful) efforts to keep a Soviet presence in Indonesia despite the anti-Communist coup there and the expulsion of Chinese diplomats.

Chinese Reciprocate

For their part, the Chinese are more than able to reciprocate the insults from their Communist brothers. A recent article of the Official Liberation Army Daily, distributed abroad by New China News Agency, charged that the "Soviet revisionist renegade clique, Brezhnev, Kossygin and their like... brazenly betrayed the great October revolution."

And in some sort of new low for propaganda between great nations, the Chinese paper published a poem ascribed to a Chinese official in the Soviet city of Minsk: "To write in the water closet."

"This tradition is not rare," "Friends, do you agree?" "Freedom of speech is only here!"

Liberation Army Daily called this "an indignant protest of the Soviet people." Not content to rest on this variety of verse, the paper went on to quote a poem by Lu Hsun, a revolutionary Chinese writer:

"A myriad families cast in gloom, men perish amid brambles and weeds
"Could I but lament and shake the earth with my sorrow"

This poem, declared the Chinese propagandist as the great anniversary neared, "is an apt description of the present Soviet Union."

Drew Pearson Says Eleven Congresswomen Will Tackle Beauty Problems

WASHINGTON—The nation's eleven Congresswomen are going into the beauty business under the Capitol dome. Or it might be more accurate to say that they are putting the government into business. The ladies will hire a manager and act as a board of overseers in operating a beauty parlor in the House of Representatives.

The pressure of catering to egotistic lady politicians for 32 years finally became too much for Mabel Solomon, who owns and operated the Capitol Hill beauty shop where hair is done at cut-rate prices. Mabel was hospitalized last June. This is it, the doctors told her. Give up your shop—grossing a quarter of a million yearly or buy a cemetery lot. So Mabel tried to quit. From her hospital bed she sent word to the office of the Capitol architect, who has charge of everything on Capitol Hill from permanent to rest rooms.

But the architect would have none of it. It's a matter for the Speaker, he said. The Speaker's office, however, told Mabel's emissary—Morris Jacobsen of Potomac Beauty Supply—to write a letter. He wrote and he phoned. Three months passed. No answer. "I couldn't get an appointment," he said. "It's as if I were in China. Until Sen. Brewster, D-Md., a close family friend, phoned. Then an aide saw me. Listened for about five minutes and advised, 'I've got nothing to do with it. See architect Stewart.'"

Again, no response. Another two weeks passed. Meanwhile, as Rep. Catherine May, R-Wash., tells it, the Speaker called the ladies in and appointed Republican May and Democrat Martha Griffiths of Michigan to investigate and come up with recommendations.

Rep. May was enthusiastic: "We'll run it and return money to the government," said the charming lady who has always wanted to keep government out of business.

Questioned as to whether Congressional ladies would get free haircuts as Senators get free haircuts, Rep. May was firm. "No," she said, "we're willing to pay the prices charged there now."

But Jacobsen was astounded to hear that the ladies would refuse to buy the present equipment, even at the most nominal used prices. Instead they would rent it for $200 a month until new, flossy equipment arrives.

"She (Mabel) has nothing there. She's made her money," Rep. Griffiths announced. "We'll get some privacy," proclaimed Mrs. May. "At present there are no booths; so everyone knows whether 'she does or she doesn't.'"

Over on the Senate side, meanwhile, beauty will continue undisturbed. The sergeant at arms agreed that the Senate beauty shop shall continue under its present manager, Myrtle, who, however, was willing to pay the used equipment price of $5,500. After all, the shop, using nine operators, grosses around $80,000 yearly.

Meanwhile, the more than 200 persons who had hoped to bid for the shop will learn from this column they never had a real chance.

Senators Back Goldberg

Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, testifying recently before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, startled some Senators when he revealed: 1. That the United States would be willing to have the Viet Cong sit at any peace conference table; 2. That United States would urge the 1954 Geneva Conference signatories which cut up former French Indo-China into four different countries to reconvene and work at peace.

The Johnson administration had made some moves on both these points in the past, but never before Goldberg's testimony had the administration gone on record without any ifs, ands or buts.

Backstage in the State Department there had been some diplomatic skirmishing before Goldberg's testimony. He had argued: "If you handle this frankly and forthrightly with the Congress, they won't be jumping down your throat."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Majority Leader, Goldberg pointed out, had introduced a resolution to place the entire Vietnam problem before the United Nations.

"We must support it," he told the State Department. "We have been trying to get UN action for two years."

Goldberg's prediction was right. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has been highly critical of the conduct of the war, was unanimous in approving the Goldberg proposals.

"If they really are interested in being of assistance in stopping this very serious conflict," said Chairman Fulbright, D-Ark., referring to the Geneva Treaty powers of Britain, Russia and France. "I am at a loss to understand why they would refuse to reconvene the conference if all the members of the Security Council so recommend."

"That would particularly apply to the French, who have on numerous occasions stated publicly that this was the way to proceed; and, of course, the Soviet Union as well."

Sen. Morse, D-Ore., summarized the testimony: "It is important that we build a bridge between the Congress and this administration in trying to resolve some of these foreign differences. I think it is a great mistake when people don't want to cross those bridges that do exist. You have crossed it this morning by appearing before this committee in a public hearing, which I think is in keeping with this whole system of representative government."

When the late John Nance Garner was Vice President, he once had the job of receiving the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, a small state in Arabia. While talking to the Sultan through an interpreter, Garner was told that Speaker Will Bankhead was waiting to receive the Sultan, and proceeded to introduce him to Carter Manasco, Bankhead's aide.

"This little S.O.B. has eyes like a mink, hasn't he?" commented the Vice President, unaware that the sultan was Oxford-educated and spoke English better than the interpreter.

Poll on Vietnam Shows New Twist in American Politics

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's a new twist in American politics: One way to win public confidence is to keep your mouth completely shut, or almost completely shut.

Another is to keep talking. But those are answers to just how you do or don't keep quiet. These are conclusions drawn from the latest Gallup public opinion poll on handling the war in Vietnam. It was taken for the National Broadcasting Co.

President Johnson didn't come out looking well among those questioned about his conduct of the war. But his five would-be or possible Republican rivals for the presidency in 1968 came out looking a lot worse.

Among the five Republicans, New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon did best. Ten per cent of those questioned said they had a "lot of confidence" in both men's ability to handle the war.

Only nine per cent said that about California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, four per cent about Illinois' Sen. Charles A. Percy, and just three per cent about Michigan's Gov. George A. Romney.

These figures are impressive if only because none of these five Republicans, in whom those polled expressed confidence in their war-handling ability—have had anything to do with handling the war.

They've been strictly limited to explaining how they'd do the handling if they only had the chance.

Nixon, as vice-president back in the 1950s, would have been involved in Vietnam in some way since the Eisenhower administration was involved, but not in the war. There wasn't any war then. Tensions were just building up.

Rocky Is Silent

But of the five, Rockefeller is the only one who has said nothing, or almost nothing, about the war. It's the others who did the talking.

Rockefeller limited himself to expressing confidence in Johnson's policy and suggesting that judgments on the war should be made only by those who, like Johnson, have access to classified information.

Oddly enough, Nixon, the only other Republican to match the practically speechless Rockefeller in winning even 10 per cent of confidence on war-handling among those questioned, has been a steady talker.

He takes the hawk view. Unlike Rockefeller, who has been willing to go along with the way Johnson is running things in Vietnam, Nixon wants a lot tougher war, a stepped-up war. He wants "massive pressure" on North Vietnam.

Reagan, also a hawk, takes the same view as Nixon. It's hard to tell what Percy wants. He has been critical of the war but unclear on solutions. Romney, lowest man in this public opinion poll, is in a class by himself.

Talking about the war for a couple of years now, he has been increasingly critical of Johnson, but he has done so much scrambling around for something to say that the result is exasperation.

The Gallup survey reported that 48 per cent of those questioned said they had "little or no" confidence in Johnson's ability to handle the war.

Only 20 per cent said they had a "lot of confidence" in the way he's doing it. Another 20 per cent expressed "some confidence."

Compared with the five Republicans Johnson is perhaps closest to Rockefeller in the field of the tight lip. In the last three years he could have done a lot more talking and explaining to the American people about the war.

He has chosen not to, for reasons of his own, which probably include a growing reluctance to do much talking on television. He does most of his talking in the White House. But the American public can't hear him there.

Revised City Charter

Now that the election is over I wonder if it would not be a good plan for the new county legislature to give serious consideration to dividing the city of Kingston into eight county legislative districts.

To select eight legislators from a field of 18 during the brief period the voter is in the booth is confusing to say the least. Besides, the election at large of these legislators may well deprive some sections of the city of fair representation.

For some time we have had committees working on a proposed revision of the city charter. I hope the present committee will be continued and, now that other matters are out of the way, they will resume functioning. It might be well for them to consider restricting the city into eight wards to coincide with eight county legislative districts and again permit the election of aldermen and the county representatives to be chosen from the same sections of the city.

Veterans' Day

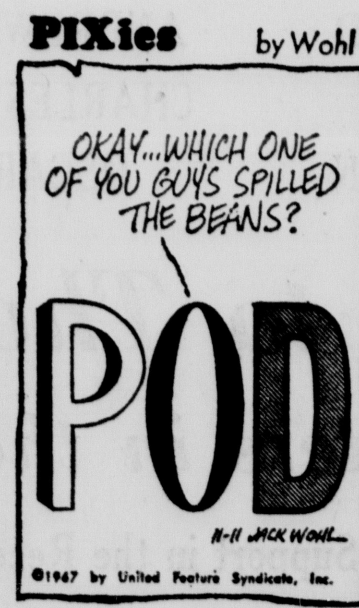

Editor, The Freeman:
It is likely to be a bad thing for America if we of New York State continue to celebrate "Veterans' Day" in the half-hearted way that we do.

While, on the one hand, our banks and our schools remain closed, this is not the entire story, but merely the beginning.

Indeed, Governor Rockefeller's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is "on record" as showing less respect for Veterans' Day than for "primary day" because, on primary day our drinking places are closed while on Veterans' Day they remain open "all day." Other units of our New York State government are equally lacking in elementary respect for "Veterans' Day."

How can we expect the young people of our state to show more respect for "Veterans' Day" than what is shown by the governor of our state and his official cronies?

It would certainly seem that the Legislature should act to change this stupid mixture of confusion and contradiction. Are the "silk stocking" politicians who presently have charge of our state government gradually becoming the blind tools of the commies? The public conscience may well soon demand to know!
Yours truly,

Setback for Rifle Boys

The National Rifle Association isn't accustomed to defeat at the hands of Washington lawmakers or other officials, so its initial reaction to the cancellation by the Department of Army of next year's rifle and pistol matches was awkward, akin to a champion athlete suffering a stunning defeat and groping for words in trying to explain it. A top NRA official said that "if the action was necessary," his group would go along; but this is a "terrible blow to our program," and the NRA "regrets" the step; but, as if searching for some glimmer of light in the suddenly dark skies, he announced that Pentagon officials had "assured us" the cancellation was for next year only.

It is solid conjecture that some interesting things went on behind the scenes before the Army broke the news. The rifle association is a power to be reckoned with in Washington, and someone must have applied some white heat to force the brass to go against it. Where this heat emanated from isn't clear—but most people will cheer whoever did it.

Just why the taxpayers should be tagged with an annual cost of several million dollars to help the NRA stage its matches out at Camp Perry in Ohio has never been explained. If the rifle boys want to put on a shooting match, let them pay for their enjoyment just like every other group that chooses to sponsor some activity in which its members show an interest. The argument that the NRA was in effect giving training to men who might someday come to the rescue in the event of a public emergency or that it was an unofficial adjunct to the military establishment, is so much tommy-rot. Internal security is the business of government, and it's up to the government—not to any private group—to see the necessary men are equipped and trained.

Too long has the Pentagon linked itself with the NRA. It has had agreements with it in the sale of rifles and ammunition, and once even refused to sell surplus rifles to Detroit police unless the police first joined the NRA and paid dues.

The only regrettable aspect of the Army action was that it said the ban was only for 1968. It blames the Vietnam war and its budgetary and manpower demands. The cancellation should have been made permanent. Five million dollars of public funds has been going annually to the association, and war or no war, it should be halted. John Q. Citizen shouldn't be saddled with the bill to let 5,000 or so rifle lobbyists enjoy several weeks of target practice, with publicly paid Army personnel acting as their orderlies.

But this battle may not be over. Despite national revulsion at the ease with which deadly firearms may be obtained, and legislation to stiffen the procedure, you can buy guns as simply as you can buy a pair of shoes. That's because of the NRA lobbyist power. Once the NRA recovers from the shock of this defeat, you can expect it to fight back. The "Battle of Camp Perry" may only be beginning.

John Nance Garner

An unbroken era of nearly four generations of Texas political power in the nation was dramatized by the death of John Nance Garner, the "Cactus Jack" of American politics early in this century.

Garner was the first of three Texans who dominated the Congress beginning with his own election as Speaker of the House in 1931. He was elected Vice President from 1933 to 1941. It dovetailed with Sam Rayburn's election as Speaker in 1940 until his retirement due to illness in 1961. The team of Rayburn and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate Majority Leader, was succeeded by Johnson as Vice President, and finally Johnson's succession as President until this day.

In that span of 36 years, one or two of these men of Texas wielded the legislative power in one or both houses of Congress. No such concentration in any one state delegation had been seen before.

Garner lacked 15 days of becoming 99 at his death in Uvalde, Texas. Elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1898, he was to continue in politics until his retirement after serving two terms as Vice President in 1941, a span of 43 years. He broke with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, his chief, over the third term issue.

The last quarter century Garner watched the parade go by from his rocking chair, happy to see Texas interests forwarded by his proteges, first Rayburn and then Johnson. It has been a most satisfying retirement for an old political war horse.

The favorite son tactic is spreading among Republicans. The latest to announce is Senator Clifford P. Case, a liberal of New Jersey. He wants to hold his state delegation together and make it count for something. It also will enable him and other favorite sons of liberal leanings to bar a first ballot nomination they dislike, notably Richard M. Nixon's.

Captain Dreyfus Case Recalled

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The month of November, 1894, memorializes a vital truth: If newspapers grow weak or soft, or supinely patronize a government in power, the public is imperiled. And in a Great Society Washington that baits the usual trap of "You scratch my back, I scratch yours" the date shouts a reminder that our press must never pull back from the independent, militant crusading thrust that makes a newspaper great.

During that memorable November Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, an artillery officer assigned to the French general staff under Gen. Auguste Mercier, the Minister of War, was tried for treason in betraying military secrets to Germany.

The court-martial—distinguished Col. du Paty de Clam presiding—sentenced Dreyfus to the horrors of Devils Island for life, the maximum punishment permitted. It was not a deliberate plot to frame an innocent man, as sometimes reported. It was the outcome of a blunder after which the entire hierarchy of France's government fabricated and manipulated its own self-serving defense on a face-saving basis.

On January 13, 1898, Emile Zola published "J'ACCUSE!" France read an enraged and uncompromising man of courage, his defiant eyes as clear as jade in a face as pale as bread.

There were 31 newspapers in Paris. High officials are indispensable news sources. Patronizing them can pay off. Angering them can close the door to "inside" information, as true in Washington today as in Paris then.

Soviet Union Is Sharpening Its Attack on Red China

By DON OBERDORFER

Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—On the eve of its 50th birthday celebration, the Soviet Union sharpened and broadened its attack on Communist China, and Moscow's version of the Chinese "yellow peril" threat makes Secretary of State Dean Rusk sound like a piker.

The last Russian propaganda blast—emanating from its embassy in Bangkok, Thailand—accuses China's leaders of "taking practical steps to carry out their aggressive aims to establish their supremacy in Southeast Asia."

The attack, in the form of a newsletter article by Prof. M. Ukraintsev, says the Chinese have their eye on Mongolia, Korea, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Burma, Thailand, part of India, the Ryukyu Islands and the Sulu Islands in the Philippines.

This is part of a Soviet propaganda drive, dating back at least to mid-Summer, which has gone so far as to call China a "yellow dragon" threatening her neighbors.

The Russian-Chinese feud is nothing new. But the increasing harsh charges by Russia of Chinese "expansionism" in Asia appears to be a new wrinkle.

The "yellow dragon" image was invoked in one of the early evidences of the Russian drive, a Radio Moscow broadcast to Romania on July 21, "China," it said, "is turning once again into that yellow dragon which, just as during the old Chinese dynasties, is ready to pounce on its weaker neighbors."

The broadcast denounced "outright subversive activity" by Chinese diplomacy in Mongolia, North Korea, India, Nepal and Burma. "The peoples and the governments of the states bordering China," it said, "must be very vigilant so that they do not become prey to the wanton chauvinists who increasingly advance along the paths of adventures in the realm of foreign policy to overcome the isolation in which they find themselves."

In October, Soviet journalist Ernest Henry wrote in the Literaturnaya Gazeta of Moscow of a "great strategic plan of Mao Tse-Tung" for the conquest of Asia. He dubbed it "Mao's Reich."

Henry, who has been touring the troubled Soviet-Chinese border areas, said that in its first stage China's plan embraced Korea, Mongolia, Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Indonesia, Malaysia and Burma.

He said the second stage would bring Chinese expansion into Hindustan, Soviet Central Asia, Soviet Far East and the Near East.

"It is not yet completely clear what is foreseen for the third stage on paper," Henry wrote—but he added ominously that the semi-official People's Daily of Peking says "China today will be the whole world tomorrow."

While raising the alarm about Chinese expansionism in Asia, the Russians have been stepping up their own diplomatic and political activity in the area, including the establishment of relations with Malaysia; a Soviet journalists' tour of the Philippines; increasingly close official contacts with Japan;

and strenuous (and successful) efforts to keep a Soviet presence in Indonesia despite the anti-Communist coup there and the expulsion of Chinese diplomats.

Chinese Reciprocate
For their part, the Chinese are more than able to reciprocate the insults from their Communist brothers. A recent article of the Official Liberation Army Daily, distributed abroad by New China News Agency, charged that the "Soviet revisionist renegade clique, Brezhnev, Kossygin and their like . . . brazenly betrayed the great October revolution."

And in some sort of new low for propaganda between great nations, the Chinese paper published a poem ascribed to a Chinese officer in the Soviet city of Minsk: "To write in the water closet."

"This tradition is not rare. Friends, do you agree? Freedom of speech is only to write in the water closet."

Liberation Army Daily called this "an indignant protest of the Soviet people." Not content to rest on this variety of verse, the paper went on to quote a poem by Lu Hsun, a revolutionary Chinese writer:

"A myriad families cast in gloom, men perish amid brambles and weeds
Could I but lament and shake the earth with my sorrow . . ."

This poem, declared the Chinese propagandist as the great anniversary neared, "is an apt description of the present Soviet Union."

Eleven Congresswomen Will Tackle Beauty Problems

WASHINGTON—The nation's eleven Congresswomen are going into the beauty business under the Capitol dome. Or it might be more accurate to say that they are putting the government into business. The ladies will hire a manager and act as a board of overseers in operating a beauty parlor in the House of Representatives.

The pressure of catering to egotistic lady politicians for 32 years finally became too much for Mabel Solomon, who owns and operated the Capitol Hill beauty shop where hair is done at cut-rate prices.

Mabel was hospitalized last June. This is it, the doctors told her. Give up your shop—grossing a quarter of a million yearly or buy a cemetery lot. So Mabel tried to quit. From her hospital bed she sent word to the office of the Capitol architect, who has charge of everything on Capitol Hill from permanent to rest rooms.

But the architect would have none of it. It's a matter for the Speaker, he said. The Speaker's office, however, told Mabel's emissary—Morris Jacobsen of Potomac Beauty Supply—to write a letter. He wrote and he phoned. Three months passed. No answer.

"I couldn't get an appointment," he said. "It's as if I were in China. Until Sen. Brewster, D-Md., a close family friend, phoned. Then an aide saw me. Listened for about five minutes and advised, 'I've got nothing to do with it. See architect Stewart.'"

Again, no response. Another two weeks passed. Meanwhile, as Rep. Catherine May, R-Wash., tells it, the Speaker called the ladies in and appointed Republican May and Democrat Martha Griffiths of Michigan to investigate and come up with recommendations.

Rep. May was enthusiastic: "We'll run it and return money to the government," said the charming lady who has always wanted to keep government out of business.

Questioned as to whether Congressional ladies would get free hairdos as Senators get free haircuts, Rep. May was firm. "No," she said, "we're willing to pay the prices charged there now."

But Jacobsen was astounded to hear that the ladies would refuse to buy the present equipment, even at the most nominal used prices. Instead they would rent it for $200 a month until new, flossy equipment arrives.

"She (Mabel) has nothing there. She's made her money," Rep. Griffiths announced. "We'll get some privacy," proclaimed Mrs. May. "At present there are no booths; so everyone knows whether 'she does or she doesn't.'"

Over on the Senate side, meanwhile, beauty will continue undisturbed. The sergeant at arms agreed that the Senate beauty shop shall continue under its present manager, Myrtle, who, however, was willing to pay the used equipment price of $5,500. After all, the shop, using nine operators, grosses around $80,000 yearly.

Meanwhile, the more than 200 persons who had hoped to bid for the shop will learn from this column they never had a real chance.

Senators Back Goldberg
Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, testifying recently before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, startled some Senators when he revealed:

1. That the United States would be willing to have the Viet Cong sit at a peace conference table;

2. That United States would urge the 1954 Geneva Conference signatories which cut up former French Indo-China into four different countries to reconvene and work at peace.

The Johnson administration had made some moves on both these points in the past, but never before Goldberg's testimony had the administration gone on record without any ifs, ands or buts.

Backstage in the State Department there had been some diplomatic skirmishing before Goldberg's testimony. He had argued: "If you handle this frankly and forthrightly with the Congress, they won't be jumping down your throat."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Majority Leader, Goldberg pointed out, had introduced a resolution to place the entire Vietnam problem before the United Nations.

"We must support it," he told the State Department. "We have been trying to get UN action for two years."

Goldberg's prediction was right. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has been highly critical of the conduct of the war, was unanimous in approving the Goldberg proposals.

"If they really are interested in being of assistance in stopping this very serious conflict," said Chairman Fulbright, D-Ark., referring to the Geneva Treaty powers of Britain, Russia and France, "I am at a loss to understand why they would refuse to reconvene the conference if all the members of the Security Council so recommend."

"That would particularly apply to the French, who have on numerous occasions stated publicly that this was the way to proceed; and, of course, the Soviet Union as well."

Sen. Morse, D-Ore., summarized the testimony: "It is important that we build a bridge between the Congress and this administration in trying to resolve some of these foreign differences. I think it is a great mistake when people don't want to cross those bridges that do exist. You have crossed it this morning by appearing before this committee in a public hearing, which I think is in keeping with this whole system of representative government."

When the late John Nance Garner was Vice President, he once had the job of receiving the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, a small state in Arabia. While talking to the Sultan through an interpreter, Garner was told that Speaker Will Bankhead was waiting to receive the Sultan, and proceeded to introduce him to Carter Manasco, Bankhead's aide.

"This little S.O.B. has eyes like a mink, hasn't he?" commented the Vice President, unaware that the sultan was Oxford-educated and spoke English better than the interpreter.

"This little S.O.B. has eyes like a mink, hasn't he?" commented the Vice President, unaware that the sultan was Oxford-educated and spoke English better than the interpreter.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Majority Leader, Goldberg pointed out, had introduced a resolution to place the entire Vietnam problem before the United Nations.

"We must support it," he told the State Department. "We have been trying to get UN action for two years."

Goldberg's prediction was right. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has been highly critical of the conduct of the war, was unanimous in approving the Goldberg proposals.

"If they really are interested in being of assistance in stopping this very serious conflict," said Chairman Fulbright, D-Ark., referring to the Geneva Treaty powers of Britain, Russia and France, "I am at a loss to understand why they would refuse to reconvene the conference if all the members of the Security Council so recommend."

"That would particularly apply to the French, who have on numerous occasions stated publicly that this was the way to proceed; and, of course, the Soviet Union as well."

Sen. Morse, D-Ore., summarized the testimony: "It is important that we build a bridge between the Congress and this administration in trying to resolve some of these foreign differences. I think it is a great mistake when people don't want to cross those bridges that do exist. You have crossed it this morning by appearing before this committee in a public hearing, which I think is in keeping with this whole system of representative government."

When the late John Nance Garner was Vice President, he once had the job of receiving the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, a small state in Arabia. While talking to the Sultan through an interpreter, Garner was told that Speaker Will Bankhead was waiting to receive the Sultan,

Viet Cong Releases Three Sergeants To Peace Committee Headed by King

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Viet Cong "symbolically" turned over three captured U.S. sergeants to an American antiwar activist today, and a U.S. document said the men had been through Communist brainwashing programs. They gave an apparently memorized statement of thanks to the Viet Cong and to Tom Hayden, who said he represented a peace committee led by Dr. Martin Luther King, folk singer Joan Baez and Dr. Benjamin Spock.

But Hayden said after the ceremonies that the prisoners were not in his custody. He said they were taken away in a car, but he would not say where. Asked if the men were free, Hayden said: "I believe so."

See Brainwashing

The U.S. document concerning brainwashing was released by American officials in Saigon. In it, Donald Rochlen, a psychological warfare adviser to the South Vietnamese government, told of an interview with a Red defector who said he personally took part in the indoctrination of two of the prisoners.

Release of the document followed the elaborately staged "release ceremony," at which the Viet Cong said they hoped the sergeants would "contribute usefully" to the antiwar movement.

At a news conference reminiscent of similar situations in the Korean war, two of three prisoners recited brief statements, apparently committed to memory, thanking Hayden and their captors. Then, blinking under television lights, they sat virtually motionless through 40 minutes of propaganda oratory. The two were Sgt. Daniel Lee Pitzer of Spring Lake, N.C., and Sgt. James E. Jackson Jr. of Talcott, W. Va. The third American, Sgt. Edward R. Johnson of Seaside, Calif., was said by the Viet Cong to be in the next room, too sick with dysentery to appear. But no outsiders saw him.

The Viet Cong announced last Friday that the Americans would be returned to their families in a gesture of solidarity with antiwar protesters and Negroes fighting for equality in the United States.

The prisoners were brought to Phnom Penh today, Cambodia has previously served as intermediary in the transfer of U.S. prisoners from North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Jackson spoke first at the news conference in a headquarters of the National Liberation Front. He wore shorts and an open-neck sports shirt and sported a trimmed moustache and tiny pencil goatee.

Prisoner's Message

He gave his name, rank and serial number, then said: "I was captured on July 5, 1965, near Bing Hung in Caumau Province. On Oct. 31, 1967, I was released. I was told by the National Liberation Front that I was being released in solidarity with the peoples movement in the United States."

"While I was a prisoner, the conduct that I maintained helped the decision of the National Liberation Front."

Diabetes Detection Week Nov. 13 to 18

Diabetics and potential diabetics in the population now number about one person in twenty, according to Dr. Norman Burg, medical advisor of the Ulster Chapter of the New York Diabetes Association. Dr. Burg said that of the millions of people with diabetes 1,600,000 do not know that they have it.

"These are, of course, in greater danger than those whose diabetes is controlled," Dr. Burg said, "because uncontrolled diabetes can lead to serious consequences. Of course, diabetes cannot be controlled until detected. If it is detected at an early stage the patient has an excellent chance of living a long, active and productive life."

Council Is Expected To Condemn Portugal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council is expected to vote overwhelmingly next week to condemn Portugal, accusing it of allowing foreign mercenaries to use its African territories for strikes on the Congo.

The General Assembly's 122-nation Trusteeship Committee condemned Portugal Friday for refusing to free its African territories—Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea. It called on the world to halt military and economic aid to the Lisbon government.

The 15-nation Security Council is expected to delay its action until Monday to provide time to remove a controversial clause. The disputed passage urged U.N. members who have special relations with Portugal to try to induce it to stop providing a haven for mercenaries. This would be aimed at Portugal's partners in the Atlantic Alliance.

The council has been holding a series of meetings on charges by the Congo that mercenaries invading from Angola tried last week to topple the Congolese government.

Jean Uamba Di Lutete of the Congo Foreign Office asked the council to impose sanctions on Portugal.

Portugal has denied that Angola served as a mercenaries' base. Delegate Francisco Bonifacio de Miranda took the floor Friday to challenge photographs and a copy of a letter used by the Congolese to support their charges.

De Miranda said photographs of armed white men "proved nothing."

Supermarket Bandits In Buffalo Get $7,000

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A team of armed bandits who first at 4:15 p.m. Friday at the crowded suburban Park Edge Supermarket in the Town of Tonawanda, forcing the store's manager to hand over the objects of a police search today.

The four-man team struck more than $5,000 in bills from number escaped with over $2,000 from the Tops First Line Market in Cheektowaga after marching two employees at gunpoint to the store's safe.

The smoothly engineered thefts resembled a pair of robberies last May 26 that netted two men about $25,000 in cash from markets in Buffalo and nearby Amherst. They also occurred late on a Friday afternoon and were staged less than 90 minutes apart.

In the first of Friday's thefts, police said, the men approached manager Louis Benatovich, 53, and forced him upstairs to his elevated office. There, he handed the money to the quartet, who stuffed it in a shopping bag.

The men left in two cars, making their exit so unobtrusive that more than 200 customers were unaware what had happened.

One of the cars, reported stolen earlier, was found abandoned in Amherst.

The second auto, detectives said, continued to the Tops store, where the two men confronted co-owner James Catalano, 34, and manager Frank A. Manna, 25.

One of the bandits showed the officials a pistol, and all four marched to the office at the opposite side of the store, where Catalano and Manna were ordered to open the safe.

"We had locked it because we heard about the Park Edge robbery," Catalano told a reporter. "At first we told them we didn't know the combination, but when they put the guns to our heads, we remembered it very quickly."

The second bandit toted a sawed-off shotgun or rifle, police said.

Manna was kicked in the shins when he first balked at opening the safe.

The bandits stuffed a shopping bag with cash and strode off to the getaway car.

Pitzer said: "I was captured in October 1963 in Caumau Province. I have been a prisoner for long years. I want to say in my four years as a prisoner I have not been physically tortured or beaten by anyone."

"I want to thank the National Liberation Front for its lenient policy and Mr. Hayden for his efforts to get us back to America."

In Saigon, Rochlen's report said he interviewed Phung Van

Tuong, a Viet Cong defector, who said he tutored two of the sergeants on the "facts of the war—how the Americans caused it" and on "how much suffering the Americans have caused the Vietnamese people."

Make Test Picnic Instead of Panic

By The Reading Laboratory

(Excerpted from the World Publishing Book, "Study FASTER and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty).

Don't get nervous because a test is coming.

Actually, it's very unproductive. You don't score any extra points for a wildly palpitating heart. As a matter of fact, the more anxious you get, the more chance there is of "freezing" on the test.

So let's assume you're calm, cool, collected and have been doing what these chapters have been telling you to do.

Start to review your notebook. You've been keeping a general outline of the course in your notebook, so the best thing to do is to read that over. As you come to each major point, stop and think about it. Consider its possible ramifications — everything that it means everything that it leads to. Try to infer what the next major point should be.

Use your textbook to check anything that's not completely clear from your notes. Or if you like, make a general overview of the chapters that pertain, just to confirm the accuracy of your notes. You won't have every little detail in your notes, but you'll have notes on where they can be found.

At first, don't bother with anything that may require memorization. Begin your reviewing at least a week before the test is scheduled so you can study somewhat leisurely and with a minimum of pressure. Save the memorization until the night before, or at most, two nights before the test. As a rule, memorization doesn't stick for a long time.

Review for the test the same way you've been studying. Get the main idea first; learn the general overview before you start to get involved in details. You can afford to miss a detail or two, because if you really understand the main idea of the course, you'll be able to figure out the details — or at least you'll be able to make good guesses.

For most people, a brain-picking session with four or five others is a good idea — with two cautions: if they turn into bull-sessions, nothing gets accomplished, and secondly, if anyone starts to panic, go off and study by yourself. Panic is contagious.

Finally, the morning of the test, a quick general overview of the notes is in order. It will refresh your memory and put you in good shape.

As a general rule, your aim in preparation is this: get yourself to the point where you can give off the top of your head, about a 15-minute summary of all the material covered. If you can do that you can afford to relax; you can be sure you won't have any trouble.

Local Students Attend NSANYS Convention

Three delegates from the Kingston area attended the convention of Nursing Students Association of New York State Nov. 3-6 at War Memorial building, Syracuse. They were Cathy Hedges, Janet Burger and Carol Blaine, junior students at Kingston Hospital.

Election of state officers took place. An amendment to the by-laws of the nursing students' constitution changed the name of the group from Student Nurses of New York State to the Nursing Students Association of New York State.

Four lectures were presented:

Forum on Nursing Education which stressed the shortage of nurses; New York State will need at least 200,000 registered nurses by 1970. Speakers were Sister Victoria, R.N., and Ester M. Thompson, R.N., M.A.

Mrs. Marjorie Blackwell, R.N., associate director, New York State Nurses Association, spoke on Economic Security.

The Forum on Publicity and Public Relations was conducted with the regard of NSANYS concerning the public's image of a nursing student. Suggestions were made to make more favorable impressions, and decisions were made to inform the public through the press of NSANYS activities.

The fourth lecture was a Forum on Citizenship. Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, second vice president, National Conference on Citizenship, spoke about the importance of being a good American first and then being a nurse.

The theme of the convention was "Commitment of an Ideal, Creation of a Reality," the ideal being the goals NSANYS hopes to attain and the reality, the bearing of the success of the convention on these goals.

RX for RNs---Pants, Jumpsuits, Culottes

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Among fashion's most interesting observers each season as new styles and trends are launched are America's 3 million women in white.

Often their look is both wistful and wishful for it usually takes several seasons and some judicious adapting to turn a Paris model into a uniform that meets the needs and proprieties of a nurse. But this year nurses are reaping the benefits of one new trend.

The trend to culottes, divided skirts and pantsuits. And while there is a discussion concerning the decorum of the look for streetwear, nurses everywhere are relishing this new practicality of fashion.

One of the oldest, but young-thinking, uniform manufacturers (White Swan, Inc.) was quick to predict the future of pants and all their variations in the uniform picture and its current collection features one chic adaptation after another. The nurses' reactions have been uniformly enthusiastic.

Culottes and pantsuits are wonderfully au courant and are perfect for the active demands of a nurse's on-duty hours.

Miss Joan Jennings, R.N., and director of the Lenox Hill Hospital School of Nursing in New York, sums up the professional attitude toward the new breed of fashion this way:

"I think they're great. Nurses' uniforms should reflect contemporary fashions. Possibly these have the added advantage of practicality. At any rate, if one's primary concern is for good taste and grooming, the bizarre and extreme will be avoided. Next some colors!"

Similarly the nation's 10,000 physiotherapists, whose freedom of movement is a basic demand of their jobs, are reported to agree that culottes are so vastly superior to conventionally skirted uniforms that they should be required wear. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Make Test Picnic Instead of Panic

By The Reading Laboratory

Don't get nervous because a test is coming.

Actually, it's very unproductive. You don't score any extra points for a wildly palpitating heart. As a matter of fact, the more anxious you get, the more chance there is of "freezing" on the test.

So let's assume you're calm, cool, collected and have been doing what these chapters have been telling you to do.

Start to review your notebook. You've been keeping a general outline of the course in your notebook, so the best thing to do is to read that over. As you come to each major point, stop and think about it. Consider its possible ramifications — everything that it means everything that it leads to. Try to infer what the next major point should be.

Use your textbook to check anything that's not completely clear from your notes. Or if you like, make a general overview of the chapters that pertain, just to confirm the accuracy of your notes. You won't have every little detail in your notes, but you'll have notes on where they can be found.

At first, don't bother with anything that may require memorization. Begin your reviewing at least a week before the test is scheduled so you can study somewhat leisurely and with a minimum of pressure. Save the memorization until the night before, or at most, two nights before the test. As a rule, memorization doesn't stick for a long time.

Review for the test the same way you've been studying. Get the main idea first, learn the general overview before you start to get involved in details. You can afford to miss a detail or two, because if you really understand the main idea of the course, you'll be able to figure out the details — or at least you'll be able to make good guesses.

For most people, a brain-picking session with four or five others is a good idea — with two cautions: if they turn into bull-sessions, nothing gets accomplished, and secondly, if anyone starts to panic, go off and study by yourself. Panic is contagious.

Finally, the morning of the test, a quick general overview of the notes is in order. It will refresh your memory and put you in good shape.

As a general rule, your aim in preparation is this: get yourself to the point where you can give, off the top of your head, about a 15-minute summary of all the material covered. If you can do that you can afford to relax; you can be sure you won't have any trouble.

Local Students Attend NSANYS Convention

Three delegates from the Kingston area attended the convention of Nursing Students Association of New York State Nov. 3-6 at War Memorial building, Syracuse. They were Cathy Hedges, Janet Burger and Carol Blaine, junior students at Kingston Hospital.

Election of state officers took place. An amendment to the by-laws of the nursing students' constitution changed the name of the group from Student Nurses of New York State to the Nursing Students Association of New York State.

Four lectures were presented:

Forum on Nursing Education which stressed the shortage of nurses; New York State will need at least 200,000 registered nurses by 1970. Speakers were Sister Victoria, RN, and Ester M. Thompson, RN, MA.

Mrs. Marjorie Blackwell, RN, associate director, New York State Nurses Association, spoke on Economic Security.

The Forum on Publicity and Public Relations was conducted with the regard of NSANYS concerning the public's image of a nursing student. Suggestions were made to make more favorable impressions, and decisions were made to inform the public through the press of NSANYS activities.

The fourth lecture was a Forum on Citizenship. Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, second vice president, National Conference on Citizenship, spoke about the importance of being a good American first and then being a nurse.

The theme of the convention was "Commitment of an Ideal, Creation of a Reality," the ideal being the goals NSANYS hopes to attain and the reality, the bearing of the success of the convention on these goals.

RX for RNs---Pants, Jumpsuits, Culottes

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—Among fashion's most interesting observers each season are new styles and trends are launched are America's 9 million women in white.

Often their look is both wistful and wishful for it usually takes several seasons and some judicious adapting to turn a Paris model into a uniform that meets the needs and proprieties of a nurse. But this year nurses are reaping the benefits of one new trend.

The trend to culottes, divided skirts and pantsuits. And while there is a discussion concerning the decorum of the look for nurses everywhere are boarding the pantswagon and relishing this new practicality of fashion.

One of the oldest, but young-thinking, uniform manufacturers (White Swan, Inc.) was quick to predict the future of pants and all their variations in the uniform picture and its current collection features one chic adaptation after another. The nurses' reactions have been uniformly enthusiastic.

Culottes and pantsuits are wonderfully au courant and are perfect for the active demands of a nurse's on-duty hours.

Miss Joan Jennings, R.N. and director of the Lenox Hill Hospital School of Nursing in New York, sums up the professional attitude toward the new breed of fashion this way:

"I think they're great. Nurses' uniforms should reflect contemporary fashions. Possibly these have the added advantage of practicality. At any rate, if one's primary concern is for good taste and grooming, the bizarre and extreme will be avoided. Next some colors!"

Similarly the nation's 10,000 physiotherapists, whose freedom of movement is a basic demand of their jobs, are reported to agree that culottes are so vastly superior to conventional skirted uniforms that they should be required wear.

California Sisters in Protest

Nuns Kick Habit, Threaten Strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An order of nuns which recently liberalized its way of life and of dress—to the reported displeasure of Cardinal McIntyre—says it will withdraw its teachers from archdiocese schools if necessary to achieve its goals.

Reports circulated this week that James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, a traditionalist, had ordered the firing next week of Immaculate Heart sisters who teach in 36 parochial schools.

In the first official statement on the reports from either the order or the Roman Catholic hierarchy, Sister Anita Caspari said Friday that the order's goal is a climate for excellence in schools and it seeks "mutual agreement" toward this end.

Then the mother general added: "Where mutual agreement cannot be reached we will be forced to withdraw from such schools rather than perform a disservice to their students."

The order has about 560 sisters who teach 23,648 students in California, Arizona and Canada.

The nuns staff 51 elementary schools, eight high schools and Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles, and partly staff schools.

A stir was caused in the Los Angeles Catholic community when the liberalization program went into effect last month.

There was comment about dress. The Immaculate Heart sisters now may dress almost as they please. There also were changes, as Sister Anita put it in documents of renewal presented to the cardinal, in "the way we pray, the way we live together, the way we govern ourselves, the way we serve the contemporary church and the world."

She added: "We believe that the rule of life contained in our documents, although tentative and experimental, is deeply Christian and expressive of the kind of religious life in the community to which we are committed in order to better serve mankind today."

"Provided that our life is rooted in the gospel, ought not sisters, like other women in today's world, be permitted to devise a way of life which fosters diversity instead of uniformity? We shared responsibility instead of unquestioning compliance?"

The archdiocese has declined comment.

To laymen and non-Catholics the order's most spectacular departure is from traditional nuns' garb.

Sisters are seen in two-piece suits and knee-length dresses with stylish, high-heeled shoes instead of the past's serviceable low heels.

Cardinal McIntyre reportedly disapproves of their going so far in their mode of dress as to lose identity as nuns. He is said not to object to somewhat less formal garb than before, or to a modified hood to facilitate automobile driving.

The sisters say their liberalized dress is only a peripheral aspect of their efforts at renewal of their order.

"In none of this," said Sister Anita, "are we moving away from the values implied in the traditional vows of religious women."

"Our new directions are, in fact, attempts to make our century-old tradition of service in California more relevant in today's world."

Public dedication ceremonies of three new wards with complete nursing facilities at Castle Point Veterans Hospital, near Beacon, will take place Sunday, 2 p. m. Call Fire Co., Not Individuals, Chief Warns

"Calls for fires and oxygen must be placed directly through the fire telephone and not to individuals," said Fire Chief Duncan Wilson of the Woodstock Fire Department in his report to the meeting of Woodstock Fire Co. 3, Lake Hill, this week.

Wilson's remarks concerning emergency calls were the result of several calls for help placed with an individual rather than the emergency telephone. "This practice wastes time and does not bring the needed help," said the chief.

The rules of the Woodstock Fire Department, particularly pertaining to oxygen calls, stress the immediate sounding of the alarm, the necessity of two or more firemen responding with the equipment, and the alerting of the village company so that extra oxygen and resuscitator can be dispatched immediately. Additional firemen are also utilized to direct emergency vehicles to the scene, especially in the case of a responding ambulance which might not be familiar with the territory and the location of the scene of the emergency. A portable radio is also required to accompany the resuscitator.

Fire drills were announced for Sunday at 9:30 a. m. and Wednesday, Nov. 29 at 7 p. m. Station check for the month was assigned to firemen Sonnenberg, Taylor, VanWagner, and Walker.

A total of $470 was reported from the 1967 Fund Drive which will terminate in December.

The building committee, headed by Walter Stone, reported that specifications for an addition to the firehouse were in the hands of contractors for estimates. A report and possible action is scheduled for the December meeting.

The election of a Fire Commissioner for the Town of Woodstock is scheduled for Dec. 5. The election of departmental officers will be held on Dec. 7 at Wittenberg.

By Christmas, 96 patients will be consolidated from five veterans hospitals in New Jersey and New York.

Other hospital projects underway include the Christmas games Dec. 13. At that time, candy and goodie-filled Santas are distributed to each patient. Sargent's Auxiliary provides 60 of these Santas.

The hospital-wide Christmas party is slated for Tuesday, Dec. 19. Mrs. John Prendergast has arranged for a bus to provide transportation that evening. The bus leaves the VFW Hall promptly at 5:30.

Mrs. Prendergast is collecting the gifts. Any person wishing to donate items may contact her or leave them in Rose's barber shop, Main Street.

Lodge Sale
Erna Kohler, a new noble grand of the Queen of the Catskill Mountain Rebekah Lodge 36, presided at the first meeting at the West Sargent's Hall recently.

At the next meeting on Nov. 16, a barter sale will be held with chairlady, Ethel A. Jehle in charge.

Three new members will be initiated at that time.

California Sisters in Protest

Nuns Kick Habit, Threaten Strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An order of nuns which recently liberalized its way of life and of dress—to the reported displeasure of Cardinal McIntyre—says it will withdraw its teachers from archdiocese schools if necessary to achieve its goals.

Reports circulated this week that James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, a traditionalist, had ordered the firing next week of Immaculate Heart sisters who teach in 36 parochial schools.

In the first official statement on the reports from either the order or the Roman Catholic hierarchy, Sister Anita Caspary said Friday that the order's goal is a climate for excellence in schools and it seeks "mutual agreement" toward this end.

Then the mother general added: "Where mutual agreement cannot be reached we will be forced to withdraw from such schools rather than perform a disservice to their students."

The order has about 560 sisters who teach 23,648 students in California, Arizona and Canada.

The nuns staff 51 elementary schools, eight high schools and Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles, and partly staff schools.

About 306 teach in the Los Angeles archdiocese.

A stir was caused in the Los Angeles Catholic community when the liberalization program went into effect last month.

There was comment about dress. The Immaculate Heart sisters now may dress almost as they please. There also were changes, as Sister Anita put it in documents of renewal presented to the cardinal, in "the way we pray, the way we live together, the way we govern ourselves, the way we serve the contemporary church and the world."

She added: "We believe that the rule of life contained in our documents, although tentative and experimental, is deeply Christian and expressive of the kind of religious life in the community to which we are committed in order to better serve mankind today."

"Provided that our life is rooted in the gospel, ought not sisters, like other women in today's world, be permitted to devise a way of life which fosters diversity instead of uniformity?"

The archdiocese has declined comment.

To laymen and non-Catholics the order's most spectacular departure is from traditional nuns' garb.

Sisters are seen in two-piece suits and knee-length dresses with stylish, high-heeled shoes instead of the past's serviceable low heels.

Cardinal McIntyre reportedly disapproves of their going so far in their mode of dress as to lose identity as nuns. He is said not to object to somewhat less formal garb than before, or to a modified hood to facilitate automobile driving.

The sisters say their liberalized dress is only a peripheral aspect of their efforts at renewal of their order.

"In none of this," said Sister Anita, "are we moving away from the values implied in the traditional vows of religious women."

"Our new directions are, in fact, attempts to make our century-old tradition of service in California more relevant in today's world."

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Call Fire Co., Not Individuals, Chief Warns

"Calls for fires and oxygen must be placed directly through the fire telephone and not to individuals," said Fire Chief Duncan Wilson of the Woodstock Fire Department in his report to the meeting of Woodstock Fire Co. 3, Lake Hill, this week.

Wilson's remarks concerning emergency calls were the result of several calls for help placed with an individual rather than the emergency telephone. "This practice wastes time and does not bring the needed help," said the Chief.

The rules of the Woodstock Fire Department, particularly pertaining to oxygen calls, stress the immediate sounding of the alarm, the necessity of two or more firemen responding with the equipment, and the alerting of the village company so that extra oxygen and resuscitator can be dispatched immediately. Additional firemen are also utilized to direct emergency vehicles to the scene, especially in the case of a responding ambulance which might not be familiar with the territory and the location of the scene of the emergency. A portable radio is also required to accompany the resuscitator.

Fire drills were announced for Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and Wednesday, Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. Station check for the month was assigned to firemen Sonnenberg, Taylor, VanWagner, and Walker.

A total of $470 was reported from the 1967 Fund Drive which will terminate in December.

The building committee, headed by Walter Stone, reported that specifications for an addition to the firehouse were in the hands of contractors for estimates. A report and possible action is scheduled for the December meeting.

The election of a Fire Commissioner for the Town of Woodstock is scheduled for Dec. 5. The election of department officers will be held on Dec. 7 at Wittenberg.

Add Painting
To Collection
At Museum

The Historical Society of Woodstock has acquired a painting by C. J. (Mac) McCarthy which is now on exhibition at 6 Rock City Road. The building is open to the public today and Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Those Woodstockers who used to visit the Old Seahorse on Rock City Road will remember the McCarthy painting as one of two that were permanently on display there in memory of Mac. The "Admiral," Richard Stillwell was a close personal friend of Mac and hung the two works to remind people of Mac and his art. The painting the society has just been given, the gift of Mrs. Anne Stillwell, widow of Richard Stillwell is a seascape, and a welcome addition to the society's growing list of acquisitions since the building opened two weeks ago.

Many have expressed an interest in checking their attics and other storage spots for items of interest that should be preserved. The society is anxious to make a complete collection of Woodstock newspapers. The major item in this line is a missing file of Woodstock section of the Kingston paper that was edited for so many years by Marion Bullard. Anyone having copies of these may be sure that they will be preserved by the society. The society is also anxious to add to its small collection of books by Woodstock authors. Among the most wanted is a copy of Will Rose's "Vanishing Village," now out of print.

Ryan and Cleveland Have Big Test Against Packers

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Battered Frank Ryan, tough in the clutch despite a series of injuries this season, faces another big test Sunday when he leads the Cleveland Browns against the Green Bay Packers, whose offensive backfield is not exactly a picture of health, either.

The canny Ryan, who has been plagued with injuries to his legs, ribs and throwing arm, still has passed for 17 touchdowns while guiding the Browns, 5-3-0, to a first place tie with St. Louis in the Century Division of the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

Green Bay will be without the services of bread and butter runner Elijah Pitts and fullback Jim Grabowski, but unfortunately, for Ryan, the Packer defense — the NFL's best — is in good shape.

Pitts tore an Achilles tendon in his right heel and Grabowski suffered an injury to his right knee in last Sunday's 13-10 loss to Baltimore. Pitts, probably out for the season, will be replaced by Donnie Anderson and Grabowski, sidelined until at least Nov. 19, will be replaced by Ben Wilson.

The fact that Green Bay, 5-2-1, lost last Sunday and that the game is at Milwaukee, Wis., should not make life any happier for Ryan.

In other NFL games, all Sunday, Pittsburgh, 2-6-0, is at St. Louis, 5-3-0; Baltimore, 6-0-2, at Atlanta, 1-6-1; Philadelphia, 4-4-0, at Los Angeles, 5-1-2; Detroit, 3-4-1, at Minnesota, 2-5-1; Chicago, 3-5-0, at New York, 4-4-0; Dallas, 6-2-0, at New Orleans, 1-7-0, and San Francisco, 5-3-0, at Washington, 2-4-2.

Cards Favored
St. Louis has a good chance to take over sole possession of first place in the Century Division.

HEAVY SHOES—Dallas Cowboys fullback Don Perkins has worn out many pairs of football shoes the past six-and-a-half seasons with the Cowboys in the NFL. He has gained a career total of 5,038 yards rushing. Perkins is one of only 10 players in the league to reach the 5,000-yard mark. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

lost to the Colts with a shoulder injury.

Los Angeles, just one game behind Baltimore in the Western Conference's Coastal Division, will be meeting a physically sub-par Philadelphia team.

Bob Brown, the Eagles' All-League offensive tackle, is out for the season with an injured knee suffered in last week's 31-24 upset loss to New Orleans. Defensive back Ron Medved also suffered a knee injury and tight end Mike Ditka a leg injury in the New Orleans game and are out indefinitely.

Detroit, which seems to lose when it is the favorite, is just that against Minnesota, and this time the Lions will have to win if they are to stay in contention in the Western Conference's Central Division.

Detroit is second, two games behind the Packers, and a half game ahead of Chicago. Minnesota, last in the division, could make it a real battle for second place honors by winning.

New York will be making its first appearance in Chicago since losing the 1963 title game to the Bears.

Must Stop Savers
The Giants, a game behind Cleveland and St. Louis in the Century, must win, and they must stop Gale Sayers, especially on kick returns to do it.

Kick and punt returns led to New York's downfall in last Sunday's 27-24 loss to Minnesota.

Dallas, ahead by two games over Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference's Capitol Division, had trouble beating New Orleans 14-10 in their first meeting. But veteran quarterback Don Meredith is healthy this time.

San Francisco badly needs a victory to stay in the Coastal Division running should the Colts and Rams falter. Washington has little hope left in the Capitol, but a victory would help the Redskins' pride.

U.S. Golfers Lead by Six In Cup Play

By STRATFORD C. JONES

MEXICO CITY (AP) — After 36 holes the World Cup tournament golf course—its rolling greens, altitude and narrow, tree-lined fairways with so many sand traps the greens appear to be mortar targets—seems to be getting to the golfers.

Arnold Palmer, whose two-under-par 70 Friday gave him a 36-hole total of 138 and a four-stroke lead for individual honors as Saturday's play opened, describes the course as "probably the toughest course I know, scorewise."

Sand in His Eye

The course got to Palmer in another way, too. Leaving one of the many fairway traps he got sand in his eye and complained of blurred vision throughout the round.

Jack Nicklaus, whose second round 71 coupled with Palmer's to give the U.S. a 281 and six-stroke team lead over Argentina, agrees on the Club de Golf Mexico's degree of difficulty. It particularly hampered his driving, which he said had been poor recently.

"I only used the driver four times today," Nicklaus said. The 7,250-yard length of the course pained Canada's George Knudson, who traveled it in 71 after a first round 73.

Knudson and teammate Al Balding, who took occasional whiffs from an oxygen bottle as they toured the 7,347-foot high course, said "it didn't do much good."

The exacting course demanded precision play by the 40 pairs of golfers who took their time to judge their shots, and later their errors. South Africa's Gary Player, after missing a four-foot putt for a bogey on the par 4 15th, took three practice putts. Play was stopped a number of times for official rulings.

Palmer and Nicklaus, who had complained of slow play Thursday, went around in five hours Friday. "I don't know why it takes so long to play," Nicklaus said. "Arnie and I played no differently than our normal pace, but for the foreigners I guess it's different. This may be the biggest tournament. We play so many that one more doesn't make that much difference."

Speed Up Process

To speed up playing today the tourney directors decided on simultaneous starting on the first and tenth tees.

Starting the third round today, Argentina's Florentino Molina, who tied the opening round with Palmer for individual honors with 68 and shot a 75 Friday, and Fidel de Luca with his 36-hole total of 144 held second place with a team 287. Mexico, one stroke off, was third, followed by New Zealand with 289.

Four strokes away from Palmer in the individual column was Nationalist China's Hsieh Yung-Ho, 142, and third was Nicklaus, 143.

Baltimore Coach

Protests Celt Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Bullets got within one point of the Boston Celtics Friday night, a moral victory if there ever was one.

But Baltimore Coach Gene Shue thinks the Bullets should have had the real thing.

Shue said he would protest the Celtics' 115-114 victory because of a field goal that came in the midst of some free throws.

The weird situation occurred with Boston ahead 108-107 and Baltimore's John Egan scored on a free throw to tie the score. Egan missed his second shot but was entitled to a third because Boston had six fouls in the period.

However, the Celtics grabbed the rebound of the second shot and before anyone knew what had happened, Sam Jones scored from the floor. Egan then got his third free throw and missed it, but teammate Ray Scott tipped it in to tie the count 110-110. Still, Jones' disputed basket turned out to be the margin of the Celtics' ninth victory against just one defeat.

In other NBA games Friday, St. Louis topped Detroit 143-140 in overtime and San Francisco whipped Philadelphia 123-104.

Baltimore wasn't out of the game until Jones scored a jumper with 11 seconds left. In all he hit for 39 points and John Havlicek added 18. Ray Scott had 27 points for the Bullets and Earl Monroe 22.

The Hawks won their seventh in a row and made it 14 of 15 for the season, going ahead of Detroit for the last time with 1:43 left in overtime on rookie George Leemann's jump shot. Zelmo Beaty scored 41 points for St. Louis and Dave DeBusschere had 35 for the Pistons.

NBA scoring leader Jimmy King led San Francisco to a 68-54 halftime lead with 19 points and when the 76ers climbed within seven points in the third period, Fred Hetzel, Rudy LaRusso and Nate Thurmond shot the Warriors into a comfortable lead again.

The loss was only the second for Philadelphia in 11 games as Boston took the top spot in the Eastern Division.

GRIN AND BEAR IT—San Francisco 49er tight end Monty Stickles grins as he is comforted by nurse Charlene Coco at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco. The former Poughkeepsie High and Notre Dame star is recuperating from surgery on his broken left forearm. Ryan and Cleveland Have Big Test Against Packers

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Battered Frank Ryan, tough in the clutch despite a series of injuries this season, faces another big test Sunday when he leads the Cleveland Browns against the Green Bay Packers, whose offensive backfield is not exactly a picture of health, either.

The canny Ryan, who has been plagued with injuries to his legs, ribs and throwing arm, still has passed for 17 touchdowns while guiding the Browns, 5-3-0, to a first place tie with St. Louis in the Century Division of the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

Green Bay will be without the services of bread and butter runner Elijah Pitts and fullback Jim Grabowski, but unfortunately, for Ryan, the Packer defense — the NFL's best — is in good shape.

Pitts tore an Achilles tendon in his right heel and Grabowski suffered an injury to his right knee in last Sunday's 13-10 loss to Baltimore. Pitts, probably out for the season, will be replaced by Donnie Anderson and Grabowski, sidelined until at least Nov. 19, will be replaced by Ben Wilson.

The fact that Green Bay, 5-2-1, lost last Sunday and that the game is at Milwaukee, Wis., should not make life any happier for Ryan.

In other NFL games, all Sunday, Pittsburgh, 2-6-0, is at St. Louis, 5-3-0; Baltimore, 6-0-2, at Atlanta, 1-6-1; Philadelphia, 4-4-0, at Los Angeles, 5-1-2; Detroit, 3-4-1, at Minnesota, 2-5-1; Chicago, 3-5-0, at New York, 4-4-0; Dallas, 6-2-0, at New Orleans, 1-7-0, and San Francisco, 5-3-0, at Washington, 2-4-2.

Cards Favored
St. Louis has a good chance to take over sole possession of first place in the Century Division.

HEAVY SHOES—Dallas Cowboys fullback Don Perkins has worn out many pairs of football shoes the past six-and-a-half seasons with the Cowboys in the NFL. He has gained a career total of 5,038 yards rushing. Perkins is one of only 10 players in the league to reach the 5,000-yard mark. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

lost to the Colts with a shoulder injury.

Los Angeles, just one game behind Baltimore in the Western Conference's Coastal Division, will be meeting a physically sub-par Philadelphia team.

Bob Brown, the Eagles' All-League offensive tackle, is out for the season with an injured knee suffered in last week's 31-24 upset loss to New Orleans. Defensive back Ron Medved also suffered a knee injury and tight end Mike Ditka a leg injury in the New Orleans game and are out indefinitely.

Detroit, which seems to lose when it is the favorite, is just that against Minnesota, and this time the Lions will have to win if they are to stay in contention in the Western Conference's Central Division.

Detroit is second, two games behind the Packers, and a half game ahead of Chicago. Minnesota, last in the division, could make it a real battle for second place honors by winning.

New York will be making its first appearance in Chicago since losing the 1963 title game to the Bears.

Must Stop Sayers
The Giants, a game behind Cleveland and St. Louis in the Century, must win, and they must stop Gale Sayers, especially on kick returns to do it. Kick and punt returns led to New York's downfall in last Sunday's 27-24 loss to Minnesota.

Dallas, ahead by two games over Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference's Capitol Division, had trouble beating New Orleans 14-10 in their first meeting. But veteran quarterback Don Meredith is healthy this time.

San Francisco badly needs a victory to stay in the Coastal Division running should the Colts and Rams falter. Washington has little hope left in the Capitol, but a victory would help the Redskins' pride.

Muskies on Hot Streak, Rout New Jersey, 120-110

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Getting hit in the pocketbook has turned the Minnesota Muskies into winners in the American Basketball Association.

Jim Pollard, coach of the Muskies, fined each of his players $25 recently for what he termed their "indifferent and lackadaisical" manner.

Since then the Muskies have won five of six games and are in second place in the Eastern Division, 2 games back of Indiana.

The Muskies chalked up their latest victory Friday night with a final quarter 33-point spurt to down the New Jersey Americans 120-110 at Teaneck, N.J.

Ron Perry, formerly of Virginia Tech, led the late drive with 12 points to break open a close game.

Tony Jackson threw in 36

points for the Americans. Perry finished with 23 points.

Cliff Hagan sank a layup at the final buzzer to give the Dallas Chaparrals a 104-102 victory over the Kentucky Colonels at Louisville. Bob Wilson was high for Dallas with 25 points. Jim Ligon's 26 topped the Colonels.

The Denver Rockets rallied for an 88-86 overtime home court victory over the Houston Mavericks in the other ABA game.

Larry Jones and Lefty Thomas brought the Rockets from 11 points back in the final period to tie the regulation game at 78-78.

Four players were banished during the rough and tumble contest. They were Byron Beck and Wayne Hightower of Denver and Willie Frazier and Larry Lentz of Houston. Julie Hammond of Denver topped all scorers with 23 points. Jones had 19 and Thomas 18.

Pittsburgh Jinx Awaits Army Team Next Saturday

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Football coaches often tell stories to their teams. Coach Tom Cahill of Army has one for the Cadets as they prepare for the one in New York City. The two Pitt game this Saturday at times at Pittsburgh. This will be No. 9 on the 1967 schedule and comes just two weeks before the Philadelphia finale with Navy.

Coach Cahill likens the 1967 season with that of 1963 when Army romped through its first eight games with a 7-1 record. There were victories over such teams as Penn State, Washington State, Air Force and Utah against the single setback at Minnesota. There was bowl talk in the air and all-America recognition in the wings.

But then loomed the Pitt jinx, an apparition which haunts the Army every time they move the troops west. Never in the history of Army-Pitt football have the Cadets won in Pittsburgh. In fact, the series has been Pitt's all the way since 1931.

Army has won three times, all at West Point. Pitt has won eight times, four at home, three at the Military Academy and one in New York City. The two Pitt games in 1958 and 1960 came at Pittsburgh. They're the best Army could do in that city.

Back to 1963 when not only did the Panthers win handily, but the 28 to 0 shutout was the first time that Army had failed to score in 56 consecutive games. Two weeks later in the much-discussed game with Navy where time ran out with Army on the Middle goal line, Navy won 21 to 15, and went to Dallas to meet Texas in the Cotton Bowl. Army went home to the Cotton Point to mowball the moleskins and reflect on a 7-3 record.

Then comes the twinkle in Cahill's Irish eyes as he concludes with the 1966 game which Army won, 28 to 0, at home and the Cadets were on their way to an 8-2 record and national recognition.

There have been six Army coaches who have sent their charges against Pitt and only Cahill is ahead of the game. Earl Blaik broke even with a 2-2-1 record, and that tie at Pitt in 1958 marring an otherwise unblemished record in his last season at the Army helm. Dale Hall picked up a tie in the 1960 encounter. Gar Davidson (0-1), Ralph Sasse (0-2) and Paul Dietzel (0-3) found the Panthers too much.

They say that it takes a Key-stoner to beat a Panther and Army may have just enough

FORREST PACKING CO., Inc., KINGSTON, N. Y.

Keystoners to do the job this time. No less than nine Cadets come from Pennsylvania. Starting on offense are ends Terry Young (Reading) and Gary Steele (Levittown) along with fullback Charlie Jarvis (Cornwells Heights). Kicking specialist Nick Kurliko (Wilson Borough) does everything for Army and has broken two field goal records. Tom Haller (Yeagerstown) is on the first defensive platoon while Backs Terry Hoffman (Northumberland) and John Brenner (Philadelphia), linebacker Paul McDowell (Levittown) and tackle Bob Allardice (Pittsburgh) are listed as defensive replacements.

Some 1,700 Cadets, members of the 2nd and 4th Regiments, will make the trip to Pittsburgh to support the Army team. The Cadets will travel by bus, leaving Friday evening and returning Sunday morning. The team will fly to Pittsburgh Friday afternoon, working out in the Pitt Stadium that same afternoon. The return air trip will be made on Sunday.

Football at West Point is certainly for the student body. Each Cadet will have attended seven games at the end of the season. While half the Corps of Cadets went to the Boston College game, the other half will be at Pitt. Only the SMU game in Dallas and the Air Force Academy game in Colorado did not have large representation. But the latter was seen by all the Cadets on television.

I'M SORRY—That's what LeRoy Ellis of Baltimore (44) seems to be saying to Celtics' Wayne Embry after the two collided during second-period action of their game Friday in Boston. The home cagers squeezed out a 115-114 protested decision. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

Sheriff Files Jail Report for October

Importance of a contract with Orange County to house overflow prisoners from Ulster County in the Orange County Jail, Goshen, was again noted in the monthly report of Sheriff William B. Martin for October.

At the opening of the month there were 78 prisoners remanded to the custody of Sheriff Martin. The local jail capacity is 56. Of the prisoners confined to jail the first of October 74 were males and four were females. The local jail has a capacity of 42 males and 14 females. Confinement of female prisoners presents no particular problem at the Wall Street jail but facilities for 74 male prisoners with a jail capacity of 42 presents a problem. The overflow is now cared for in the Orange County jail under agreement with Orange County officials.

During October there were 201 admissions to the local jail, 185 of them males and 15 women. During the month 184 males were discharged from the local jail and 16 women, for a total of 200. However the intake in October left a total of 79 prisoners to be cared for by Sheriff Martin on the last day of October.

Of the admissions in October 96 were held for grand jury and 95 were serving sentence. Four of the admissions were debtors and six were for other causes. By the end of October the number of prisoners held for grand jury or trial was 44 and 35 were convicted or serving time.

The average population for October was 72.

Total meals served was 5,098, of which 77 were served to county prisoners. Trustees worked 2,523 hours which at $2 an hour represents a saving of $5,046 to the taxpayers.

During October 80 summonses were issued at the county parking lot. Man hours consumed in policing the parking lot were 124 and the income was $655.42.

In the Social Services Department 170 persons were fingerprinted, 62 pistol permits issued, 67 pistols registered and 110 record checks were made. Receipts from the Pistol Department were $335.

In the Criminal Department 186 complaints were investigated, 101 closed by investigation, 22 arrests were made. Complaints still open number 63. Accidents investigated were 21 and there were 12 Vehicle and Traffic arrests. Two felony warrants were executed, 18 misdemeanor warrants executed including Family Court. Misdemeanor arrests totaled 17 and felony arrests 3. Deputies traveled 49,274 miles on patrol and property valued at $4,645 was recovered. Deputies attended 199 hours of school and special details worked 116½ hours while the desk and guard duty hours totaled 1,926.

Tannersville Manhunt Continues

A manhunt for an armed, unidentified male continues this morning in a deeply wooded area near Tannersville.

Yesterday, the man armed with a rifle threatened a state trooper and a justice of the peace after the auto he was driving crashed into another vehicle, Leeds state police said this morning. The man's car was reported stolen from New Paltz, police added.

Police were pursuing the auto when it struck a car driven by Mrs. Shirley Benjamin, 24, of Lanesville. She was treated at Greene County Hospital.

According to the police, the man fled the car and ran toward a school building. John Glennon, a school employee and Tannersville Justice of the Peace, was rebuffed in efforts to talk the man into surrendering.

Glennon noted that the subject was young, about 5 feet nine inches, and appeared to be in shock. He said the man slipped into the dense forest after attempts to reason with him failed. The pursuing trooper couldn't quite catch up, Glennon said.

Throughout the night and early today scores of police combed the mountain vicinity for signs of the man, troopers disclosed. However, he has not been spotted, police added.

An area resident was heard to remark, "People who know these woods get lost. This fellow doesn't know the hills. I wonder."

Sheriff Files Jail Report for October

Importance of a contract with Orange County to house overflow prisoners from Ulster County in the Orange County Jail, Goshen, was again noted in the monthly report of Sheriff William B. Martin for October.

At the opening of the month there were 78 prisoners remanded to the custody of Sheriff Martin. The local jail capacity is 56. Of the prisoners confined to jail the first of October 74 were males and four were females. The local jail has a capacity of 42 males and 14 females. Confinement of female prisoners presents no particular problem at the Wall Street jail but facilities for 74 male prisoners with a jail capacity of 42 presents a problem. The overflow is now cared for in the Orange County jail under agreement with Orange County officials.

During October there were 201 admissions to the local jail, 185 of them males and 15 women. During the month 184 males were discharged from the local jail and 16 women, for a total of 200. However the intake in October left a total of 79 prisoners to be cared for by Sheriff Martin on the last day of October. Of the admissions in October 96 were held for grand jury and 95 were serving sentence. Four of the admissions were debtors and six were for other causes. By the end of October the number of prisoners held for grand jury or trial was 44 and 35 were convicted or serving time.

The average population for October was 72.

Total meals served was 5,098, of which 77 were served to city prisoners. Trustees worked 2,523 hours which at $2 an hour represents a saving of $5,046 to the taxpayers.

During October 80 summonses were issued at the county parking lot. Man hours consumed in policing the parking lot were 124 and the income was $655.42.

In the Social Services Department 170 persons were fingerprinted, 62 pistol permits issued, 67 pistols registered and 110 record checks were made. Receipts from the Pistol Department were $335.

In the Criminal Department 186 complaints were investigated, 101 closed by investigation, 22 arrests were made. Complaints still open number 63. Accidents investigated were 21 and there were 12 Vehicle and Traffic arrests. Two felony warrants were executed, 18 misdemeanor warrants executed including Family Court. Misdemeanor arrests totaled 17 and felony arrests 3. Deputies traveled 49,274 miles on patrol and property valued at $4,645 was recovered. Deputies attended 199 hours of school and special details worked 116½ hours while the desk and guard duty hours totaled 1,926.

Receipts from bails and fines by the Civil Department was $9,090; receipts from executions $13,323.65 and fees amounted to $1,987.38, which was turned over to the county treasurer.

Summonses and subpoenas were 94, grand and trial jury summonses 150, district attorney summonses were 45. Commitment orders numbered 8, income executions 35 and property executions 17.

Mayor Declares Veterans Week

"Employ a Veteran Week" has been declared in Kingston by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan beginning today, Veterans Day, and ending Nov. 17.

The mayor pointed out that veterans registered with the New York State Employment Service are given priority in jobs. They are, in fact, entitled by law to such preference.

Mayor Garraghan said that men and women who have served in the armed forces usually become valuable employees. He asked employers to give special consideration to veterans not only during Employ Veterans Week but in other weeks as well.

American Legion Assailed for Free Speech Policies

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—The commander of the state American Legion was met with strong anti-Vietnam war protests when he spoke Friday at Utica College.

Edward R. Delehanty was interrupted repeatedly by students who protested the Legion's "policy of infringing on freedom of speech." Students also picketed peacefully.

Delehanty, of Albany, said the organization firmly supported the right of free speech but "each new generation must earn the right to have freedom."

Charles Stroger, who said he coordinated the demonstration for the Unaffiliated Students for Action, said about 150 students participated.

The college has an enrollment of 1,300.

CSEA Hears Provisions of Taylor Bill

Ulster County's Civil Service Employees Association met this week in the County Office Building where members heard the newly enacted Taylor Bill explained.

The bill stipulates under what conditions civil employees can bargain for pay hikes, fringe benefits and other items. The law also governs the use of strikes.

During the meeting representatives from area association organizations urged members to form a single unit to handle all bargaining. Such a unit will be established, a spokesman said.

All county government departments were represented at the meeting.

President John Adams approved America's first "medicare" in 1796 "for the relief of sick and disabled seamen."

Tannersville Manhunt Continues

A manhunt for an armed, unidentified male continues this morning in a deeply wooded area near Tannersville.

Yesterday, the man armed with a rifle threatened a state trooper and a justice of the peace after the auto he was driving crashed into another vehicle. Leeds state police said this morning. The man's car was reported stolen from New Palz, police added.

Police were pursuing the auto when it struck a car driven by Mrs. Shirley Benjamin, 24, of Lansville. She was treated at Greene County Hospital.

According to the police, the man fled the car and ran toward a school building. John Glennon, a school employee and Tannersville Justice of the Peace, was rebuffed in efforts to talk the man into surrendering.

Glennon noted that the subject was young, about 5 feet nine inches, and appeared to be in shock. He said the man slipped into the dense forest after attempts to reason with him failed. The pursuing trooper couldn't quite catch up, Glennon said.

Throughout the night and early today scores of police combed the mountain vicinity for signs of the man, troopers disclosed. However, he has not been spotted, police added.

An area resident was heard to remark, "People who know these woods get lost. This fellow doesn't know the hills. I wonder."

Dear Abby

Boy Friend Needs Needle

By Abigail Van Buren
(1967 by Chicago Tribune
© News Syndicate, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Do I have the right to insist that my boy friend remove the tattoo from over his heart? It says Sharon. Before we started going together, he went with this girl named Sharon. I never knew her, but I am very jealous of her.

My boy friend says you can never remove a tattoo once it's on, but I have heard that you can. I suppose he could cover it with a piece of adhesive tape, or maybe go back for some more tattooing and change the Sharon to some kind of a scene or design.

Anyhow, I can't see marrying a guy with Sharon on his chest. He says it doesn't bother him. Well, it bothers me. Am I wrong to feel this way, and isn't there some way to get it off?

DEAR MILLIE: Assuming your boy friend doesn't still have Sharon under his skin, he could easily get her off his chest. Tell him that a skin specialist can remove the tattoo. And he won't have to hold still for any further needling.

DEAR ABBY: The other evening while I was preparing supper, my husband's unmarried sister dropped in, as she often does. She asked me to call her mother and tell her a lie as to why she wasn't going to be home for supper that night. I told her if her mother found out that I lied to her she wouldn't think much of me as a person, and I just didn't want to do it.

She replied, "Well, she doesn't think much of you anyway. She is always talking about the way you dress, and the way you do your hair and your make-up—how overdone it is."

Abby, I was crushed. I always try to look my best and people are always complimenting me on how fashionable I dress, and how well-groomed I look. I never thought I overdid it. I have been just heartsick about it. Should I discuss it with my husband? Should I take it up with my mother-in-law, or what?

DEAR HURT: You don't say how old your sister-in-law is, but if she's more than 10 she's a nitwit. Don't discuss it with your husband. And don't take it up with your mother-in-law. Either she's too unreliable to be believed, or she's a first class troublemaker.

DEAR ABBY: We are another pair of "in-laws" who are called nothing by our daughter-in-law. After 2 years we are still greeted with "Hi." When we told our son we would like to be called something (after all, even a dog has a name) he said he'd mention it to his wife, but apparently he never has.

Perhaps some good came of this, because we finally woke up. For years we deprived ourselves of luxuries so our son could have a college education. We never took vacations because we were saving for him.

My husband isn't too well, and now I've persuaded him to retire early and enjoy himself instead of worrying about how much he will leave to our son and his family.

It seems that addressing us in some half-way respectful manner poses a tremendous "problem" to our son's wife. If she thinks this is a problem, wait until she reads our will!

"HI'S" IN-LAWS

DEAR ABBY: As I sit here watching my beautiful baby boy while he so cheerfully laughs and plays with his stuffed doggy, I want very much to know something.

Do fathers of illegitimate children ever think of their precious offspring? If you can't answer my question, maybe they can thank you. STEVEN'S MOTHER

Bea (Mrs. Howard) Schenk writes: "My sister, Mrs. Harold Goldberg of Gary, Ind., was in New York for a few days. I asked her what she would like to do and, strangely enough, her answer was 'Play bridge.' It just happened that there was a duplicate game at the Cavendish Club and we played. Here is a top score that she got for making four hearts."

"The defense started off with three diamond tricks. A spade was taken by declarer's ace, and it was up to her to make the rest of the tricks. She started by leading a heart to dummy's ace. West's play of the jack caused her to pause and reflect for some time. Eventually she decided that it was a bona fide singleton, so her next play was to lead the nine of hearts and let it ride. After that, it was a simple matter to take dummy's king of trumps, lead a club and finesse her jack, draw the last trump and eventually get rid of her losing spade on dummy's fourth club."

The hand is interesting for a number of reasons. The first one is that the four-heart contract was rather ambitious but hard to stay out of. Actually, Mrs. Schenk had a minimum heart raise and Mrs. Goldberg a minimum jump to game.

Then the diamond lead was unusual but most effective that it gave the defense the first three tricks. It also gave declarer a lot of information. The spade lead that came next showed that West had overcalled with very little. Surely he would have a singleton to justify his overcall, so that when the jack of hearts appeared Mrs. Goldberg was able to finesse with confidence.

As for the club finesse and break, there was no other way to bring in four club tricks. It is a well-known principle of play that, when only one combination of cards will let you make your contract, you play for that combination.

Avengers' Mrs. Peel Going

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

The Avengers is coming back next January but, alas, Mrs. Peel will head our call for only two months.

ABC has announced that the Avengers, the slick English adventure spoof, will replace Custer at 7:30 p. m. (EST) Wednesday, beginning Jan. 10.

A Delightful Lynx But Diana Rigg, that delightful lynx, will appear in only the first nine episodes. She has dropped out of the British-produced series to do films and stage work.

A Canadian actress, Linda Thoson, will be introduced as a crime-fighter in the ninth episode and will join Steed—obliquely, naturally—in the following eight episodes.

According to our good friend Joseph Shrier, manager of current programming at ABC, Miss Thoson is a 20-year-old blonde with approximately the "same dimensions" as Miss Rigg, who was selected for the part from among 200 actresses.

She will play Tara King, a single adventuresome, not widowed—already it sounds pedestrian—who meets Steed (Patrick Macnee) and Emma Peel on a caper. During this fateful episode.

Incidentally, Schrier thinks he deserves a few thank-yous for returning the Avengers to the bright people who joined a letter-writing campaign to the network.

He said he received a "good few hundred" letters from around the country, adding they were not typical "I-can't-live-without-this-program" fan mail.

Mrs. Peel announces she wants to retire from the pursuit of crime and pleasure and travel around the world (Hollywood would have retired her from the series with an incurable brain disease) and Tara decides to take her place beside faithful Steed.

Schrier said Tara will be "more feminine" than Mrs. Peel. Tara will wear conventional dress rather than mod outfits; be fearful of danger, and less sophisticated in Karate and Judo.

The English producers wanted to give the new girl a different personality. This is the kind of thinking that has kept the English Lion asleep all these years.

Inconveniently Early The time period is inconveniently early, but we should be happy for small favors, because Schrier indicated the Avengers is too good to be carried on American television in its present form for more than the contracted 17 programs.

"They put so much time and care and production values into that show—about 12 working days rather than seven we do in our series—that it would be almost impossible for them to grind out episodes to meet the air dates," said Schrier.

Incidentally, Schrier thinks he deserves a few thank-yous for returning the Avengers to the bright people who joined a letter-writing campaign to the network.

He said he received a "good few hundred" letters from around the country, adding they were not typical "I-can't-live-without-this-program" fan mail.

"It was a very literate segment, don't think Schrier should be of adults, with letters typed, thanked until ABC produces an perfect grammar and a vocabulary indicating good schooling," Rigg and Patrick (Secret Agent) What a kiss of death. But I McGoohan.

Avengers' Mrs. Peel Going

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

The Avengers is coming back next January but, alas, Mrs. Peel will heed our call for only two months.

ABC has announced that the Avengers, the slick English adventure spoof, will replace Custer at 7:30 p. m. (EST) Wednesday, beginning Jan. 10.

A Delightful Lynx

But Diana Rigg, that delightful lynx, will appear in only the first nine episodes. She has dropped out of the British-produced series to do films and stage work.

A Canadian actress, Linda Thoson, will be introduced as a crime-fighter in the ninth episode and will join Steed—obliquely, naturally—in the following eight episodes.

According to our good friend Joseph Schrier, manager of current programming at ABC, Miss Thoson is a 20-year-old blonde with approximately the "same dimensions" as Miss Rigg, who was selected for the part from among 200 actresses.

She will play Tara King, a single adventuress, not widowed—already it sounds pedestrian—who meets Steed (Patrick Macnee) and Emma Peel on a caper. During this fateful episode,

Mrs. Peel announces she wants to retire from the pursuit of crime and pleasure and travel around the world (Hollywood would have retired her from the series with an incurable brain disease) and Tara decides to take her place beside faithful Steed.

Schrier said Tara will be "more feminine" than Mrs. Peel. Tara will wear conventional dress rather than mod outfits; be fearful of danger, and less sophisticated in Karate and Judo.

The English producers wanted to give the new girl a different personality. This is the kind of thinking that has kept the English Lion asleep all these years.

Inconveniently Early

The time period is inconveniently early, but we should be happy for small favors, because Schrier indicated the Avengers is too good to be carried on American television in its present form for more than the contracted 17 programs.

"They put so much time and care and production values into that show—about 12 working days rather than seven we do in our series—that it would be almost impossible for them to grind out episodes to meet the air dates," said Schrier.

Incidentally, Schrier thinks he deserves a few thank-yous for returning the Avengers to the bright people who joined a letter-writing campaign to the network.

He said he received a "good few hundred" letters from around the country, adding they were not typical "I can't live without this program" fan mail.

"It was a very literate segment don't think Schrier should be of adults, with letters typed, thanked until ABC produces an perfect grammar and a vocabulary indicating good schooling," Rigg and Patrick (Secret Agent) What a kiss of death. But I McGoohan.

Blast Kills Broadcaster

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Hulbert Taft Jr., a leading broadcasting executive and member of Ohio's famous Taft family, is dead as the result of an explosion that ripped apart a bomb shelter on his suburban estate.

Taft, 60-year-old board chairman of Taft Broadcasting Co., was killed about 4 p.m. Friday when the blast wrecked the shelter in suburban Indian Hill.

Fire Chief Cliff Behrman of Indian Hill termed the explosion "an unfortunate accident." Authorities said the 40 by 70 foot shelter contained a stockpile of bottled gas, but the cause of the explosion was not determined immediately.

"There was a smell of gas in the area when we arrived," Behrman said. The blast raised the shelter's roof, which collapsed, burying Taft under the debris.

Authorities in Anderson Township, 12 miles away, blamed natural gas for the explosion and fire that destroyed the home of a Taft employee before dawn Friday. Ron Doll, a news editor for WKRC-TV, and Bill Villa, a commercial photographer living in the same house, escaped unhurt by jumping from second-floor windows.

Tom Jones, news director of the station, said an investigation showed no apparent connection between the explosions.

Hulbert Taft Jr. was a grandson of Peter Dawson Taft, a half-brother of William Howard Taft, the 27th president. The explosion was not determined immediately.

Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati city councilman and civic leader, were sons of the president and the shelter's roof, which col-

Connelly to Quit As Texas Governor

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Potential candidates to succeed Texas Gov. John Connally re-examined their prospects with fresh interest today in the light of his decision not to seek another term.

There also was speculation on how Connally's move might affect support in Texas of a bid for re-election by President Lyndon B. Johnson, a longtime friend and political confidant of the governor.

While fellow Democrats jockey for position, Republicans applauded what many viewed as their best chance in years to elect a Texas governor in 1968.

Connally said he had no endorsements in mind Friday when he announced that his third two-year term, ending in January 1969, will be his last.

The governor said he concluded that "I no longer can be assured in my own mind that I could bring to the office for another two years the enthusiasm, the resilience, the patience that my conscience would demand and the state would deserve."

One-Stop Evening at New Playhouse

There's never been anything quite like it for uniqueness in the Hudson Valley area. It's an exciting theatrical event and, for those who don't mind motoring beyond Ulster's borders for an evening's entertainment, it offers a one-stop night out par excellence.

It also promises to be an evening to remember . . . and it takes place not too far afield with the grand opening of a new Dinner Theatre, Children's Theatre and Centre for the Performing Arts at Cornwall-on-Hudson on Nov. 18.

Veteran theatre goers in this area will be interested in the news that Playhouse on the Hudson has acquired the theatre formerly known as The Storm King Theatre, at Hudson and Idlewild Streets in Cornwall. Not only has the interior been completely refurbished, but a restaurant and cocktail lounge have been installed.

In this new setting, the theatre aims to provide something rare in this area — an elegant and relaxed one-stop evening beginning with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at 6 p. m., moving on into dinner and the show of the night . . . and ending with dancing and/or singing in the new piano bar.

Slate Six Shows

For this first season, Playhouse on the Hudson plans the presentation of six all-time favorite musicals, comedies and dramas in their full-length Broadway versions, performed by a professional resident stock company on the full stage of the theatre.

To give this premiere piece de resistance an appropriately rousing send off, the new professional dinner theatre is planning a gala opening, complete with champagne toasts and a special show dinner for patrons. Good theatre and good food will keynote the opening and it's all open to the public. Those who might like to plan to attend should bear in mind, however, that no more than 200 reservations can be accepted for the opening night affair — meaning tables should be reserved early.

The winter season reads like a playgoer's dream. With Neil Love directing, Playhouse on the Hudson will kick off with the comedy delight that propelled Sandy Dennis to stardom, "Any Wednesday," due for presentation Nov. 18 through Dec. 2. Bowing in on Dec. 6 and running until Dec. 23 will be "Where's Charley" — the musical version of "Charlie's Aunt."

Shortly after Christmas, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" takes over the Playhouse stage. This musical extravaganza with a Roman flavor opens Dec. 27 and will remain onstage through Jan. 13. Mack the Knife and all his friends and enemies romp behind the footlights from Jan. 17 through Feb. 3 when "Three Penny Opera" is brought back to the area. The season swings down the finish line with "The Knack," a kooky comedy from Feb. 7 to 17, and ends spectacularly with the dramatic offering, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" from Feb. 21-31.

Performances are slated each Wednesday, Thursday, Fri-

Takes Backstage Bustle to Raise a Curtain

BEHIND EVERY THEATRICAL ENDEAVOR, behind every director and all-star cast, are the people who type the scripts, juggle the stage props, paint the scenery and sets, and make the inevitable runs for sandwiches and coffee. As Kingston's Coach House Players went about the intricately involved business of getting its first production of the 1967 fall season on the boards this week, Freeman photographer John Kruh dropped by backstage to record some of the bustle. And bust there was. Director Bill Skilling was caught going over his check list at the far left. Next in line is Roger School, who has a supporting role in the latest Coach House production; is using this pre-rehearsal time to reposition a folding chair. On the ladder with paint brush in hand is Louise Pomeroy, art director of the group. Shifting the "cobblestone" fireplace are Harry Sommer, production manager, actor and set designer, and Bruce Watson (far right), who also doubles as an actor when he's not moving the furniture. All this activity is geared to assure the success of that comedy delight, "Goodbye Charlie," which is being presented by Coach House on the evenings of Nov. 16, 17 and 18 at the George Washington School. Followers of theatrical circles know that "Charlie" came from the pen of playwright George Axelrod, who gave "The Seven Year Itch" to the world. The Broadway version of "Charlie" starred Lauren Bacall; the movie made from the play had Debbie Reynolds and Tony Curtis in the leads. Locally, a cast of seven will recreate the play during its three nights run.

Arts Council Catalyst in Program

The New York State Council on Arts, serving as catalyst, recently launched a bold program to promote the performing arts in conjunction with the Office of University-Wide Affairs of State University of New York, and the National Endowment on the Arts and Humanities. The three institutions will pool funds to bring drama, dance, chamber music and inter-media festivals to private and public college campuses in New York State.

Here is how the grants will be used:

Dancer-choreographer Daniel Nagrin, in residence at State University College at Brockport during the 1967-1968 fall semester will create a solo dance theatre work based on the text of Thucydides, "The Peloponnesian War."

The Cunningham Dance Company will be in residence in Buffalo from Feb. 12 to March 10, after which they spend one month touring eight campuses.

A new work by the choreographer will be prepared in Buffalo and premiered on March 11 during the city's Art Festival.

Youthful Playwright
"Who's Got His Own," a play

by 26-year-old Negro playwright

Ron Milner opened on Nov. 4 at the University of Syracuse. The work is produced by The American Place Theater, directed by Lloyd Richards and will travel to Alfred University, State University campuses at Geneseo, Johnstown, Fulton, Montgomery, Brockport, Cortland and Oneonta during the first three weeks of this month.

The Dorian Quintet also presents 36 concerts and seminars from Nov. 1, 1967 to June 30, 1968 at upstate campuses.

A new venture, also initiated by the Council will be a tour of about 12 multi-media artists to eight colleges, with a New York opening and a New York run.

In the case of Danny Nagrin and the Cunningham Dance Company, the University actually is the artists' home base. It acts as consumer and patron, awakes new audiences, and makes it possible for the artists to create new works: 12 in mixed media and two in dance.

Modern Miracle Is Documented

"Behind These Doors," a new documentary film produced by the Reader's Digest, will make its Central New York television premiere Sunday, Nov. 12. A full color presentation, "Behind These Doors" documents an American miracle: the daily gathering and distribution of the 784 million pounds of food required for 24 hours of life in the United States. The film dramatically traces the incredible series of events that leads from grower to processor to the tables of American homes. It is being presented this Sunday by the Victory Markets in the public interest at 1 p. m. on WHEN-TV

(channel 5), Syracuse and WNBF-TV (channel 12), Binghamton. It will also be shown at 5:30 on WNYS-TV (channel 9), Syracuse and at 6 p. m. on WKTV (channel 2), Utica. Following the broadcasts, the Victory Markets will make the film available without charge to clubs, groups and organizations.

'Goodbye Charlie'

A cast of seven talented thespians is expected to delight a standing room only audience when the curtain goes up on the sparkling comedy, "Goodbye Charlie," at the George Washington School here on Thursday of next week.

The show will run for three consecutive nights (Nov. 16, 17 and 18) with the houselights dimming at 8:30 p. m. Performances are being directed by the very capable Bill Skilling, and sets are being executed by Harry Sommer and Ralph Harper.

The title role of Charlie, a one-time rake reincarnated as a glamour girl—a role originally created by Lauren Bacall on

Frank Ryerson will appear in the part of George, Charlie's bachelor friend during his roué lifetime, whose old comradeship with the hero takes on a new light in view of the change in Charlie's anatomy. Ryerson is director of Speech and Drama at Kingston High School, and his acting was one of the bright spots in Coach House's spring production of the musical, "Pajama Game."

Portraying Rusty, Charlie's former girl friend, will be Dorothy Darrow, winner of the Coach House Scholarship for Advanced Study in the Arts in 1963. Miss Darrow subsequently majored in music and drama at Ithaca College; is a Junoesque beauty.

In supporting roles audiences will see Eloise Gardner, Roger Scholl, Harry Sommer and Bruce Watson.

Tickets are available from Coach House members and at the Book Center in the Ulster Shopping Plaza. Ducats will also be on sale at the Washington School box office prior to performances.

Artists Who Took to Water Send Out Distress Signals

BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA

With the high price of studios and north lights what they are today in New York City, two artists with Ulster County ties thought they had the problem licked until this week. They picked up two old barges with peeling paint but lots of easel room, and floated them into an abandoned pier on the East River. It took virtually little or no effort to convert them into sort of floating lofts on the water of one of the three streams that earned Manhattan its right to be called an island.

The artists who barged their way to fresh air, sunshine and the peace and quiet desired by all painters and sculptors are Franklin Drake formerly of Woodstock, and Lindsey Decker, whose avant garde works were shown in the Ulster art colony this past summer.

Decker, who docked his barge last week at Pier 27, under the Manhattan and Brooklyn Bridges, had long nourished a dream to work on the river—not totin' those bales, particularly, but at least stretching his canvases sternward. But the whole idea ran aground when he pulled in next to Drake, who had moved his own huge 100 by 30 foot barge into the pier two months ago.

The City of New York lowered the mizzenmast almost immediately; charged Drake and Decker with failing to live up to certain agreements which it says were made.

Decker, who had a one-man show at the Copeland Galleries in Woodstock this year, wants to stay put or find similar surroundings elsewhere. "It's ideal," he says, "and it's the logical answer to high rents and electricity rates." The sailor-artist life is the life for him; utilizing his own power plant and fixing up the barge in order to become his own landlord.

Drake, a one-time owner of Cafe Espresso in Woodstock and a several times exhibitor at Copeland Galleries (owned by his sister), agrees. "It's very pleasant here," he says, like a good first mate. "We're alone and we can go about our work quietly."

But it's not so quiet any more since the City and its Department of Marine and Aviation stepped in. As a matter of fact, it's about as noisy as the "happening" Drake was involved in at the Woodstock dump last Fourth of July, when he made some sort of local history by creating sculpture amid the debris and dust of the burning rubbish.

The East River front is being lashed by the waves made by Assistant Commissioner William F. Tobin, who says the two sculptors have not kept their bargain and who adamantly insists they haul anchor immediately.

Tobin maintains they were given permission in September to dock only one barge and for only one week. They have not abided by instructions, he says, to submit further plans for a permanent location.

Waterfront Colony

The floating artists had originally envisioned a waterfront community, but Tobin says they did not, as they were told, outline their basic ideas for an inland waterway artists colony to him.

The abandoned piers in the area chosen by Decker and Drake are due for demolition and it was the appearance of the second barge that aroused the ire of Tobin. He said Decker's barge moored without permission and that neither Decker nor Drake have work permits to repair the barges.

Could the stormy seas stirred up around the barges be construed as an Establishment move against freedom of art? Tobin says no. "The city isn't moving against artists in any way, shape or form," he maintains. "Just showing these artists have not lived up to any of their part of the bargain." With that, the assistant commissioner pulled in his oars; refused to say more.

Heaving Off

In any event, Drake and Decker will apparently have to take their own particular brands of sculptural shapes and forms elsewhere. They say they're looking for an alternative pier but insist such an undertaking cannot be accomplished in a day and that they need time and assistance. They feel they have not violated any agreements and charge harassment by the City. Such harassment has taken the form of installing new locks on the gate leading to their pierside lofts.

As the fight over the barge continues, local fans of Drake and Decker are inclined to lend their moral support. They point out that the Rondout Creek and Hudson River in this area are strewn shoreline with functioning and abandoned barges of all types and in every conceivable condition. The East River's loss might very well be Ulster's gain, they say. But Drake, who was a faculty member of Group 212 in Saugerties this summer, and Decker, aren't saying whether or not they'd exchange the city's lights for rural ice floes this winter.

Meanwhile, the artist's life is not particularly sublime for Decker and Drake, who feel their city hosts lack something in courtesy.

One-Stop Evening

day and Saturday during the winter season and the evening runs along these lines:

Cocktail hour at 6 p. m.; menu selections from 6-8 p. m.; curtain goes up at 8:30 p. m.; dancing in the Sing-Along Bar from 11:30 on. Price scales for dinner, dancing and the show are slightly higher for musicals than for comedies and dramas. The Playhouse will also offer group rates for 25 or more and fund raising will be its specialty.

The Children's Theatre section of the new Playhouse will be presenting two classics, "Peter Pan" and "Hansel and Gretel." The former play, the legendary tale of a little boy who refused to grow up, will be presented at matinee performances at 2 p. m. on Dec. 2, 9, 16, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31. The Hansel and Gretel fairy tale of a lost brother and sister and their encounter with a hungry witch will open Jan. 13. Tickets for these shows are in a much lower price scale than those for the adult offerings and group rates and fund raising are also available.

Playhouse on the Hudson, which can honestly boast the reputation of being Orange County's only professional dinner and children's theatre, is located just one mile off the Cornwall exit of Route 9W.

Plan Honor Roll

Mail order and phone reservations are now being accepted, and those who so desire may help support this new cultural venture by becoming a yearly booster, patron, subscriber, life member or stockholder. Plans are in the works to honor supporters by placing their names in the theatre's honor roll—to be framed in the lobby.

Says director Neil Love: "The opening and each and every successive evening will be an event to remember, we guarantee. We'd like you, you and you to be there . . . so, come on down, and join us!"

One-Stop Evening

day and Saturday during the winter season and the evening runs along these lines:

Cocktail hour at 6 p. m.; menu selections from 6-8 p. m.; curtain goes up at 8:30 p. m.; dancing in the Sing-Along Bar from 11:30 on. Price scales for dinner, dancing and the show are slightly higher for musicals than for comedies and dramas. The Playhouse will also offer group rates for 25 or more and fund raising will be its specialty.

The Children's Theatre section of the new Playhouse will be presenting two classics, "Peter Pan" and "Hansel and Gretel." The former play, the legendary tale of a little boy who refused to grow up, will be presented at matinee performances at 2 p. m. on Dec. 2, 9, 16, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31. The Hansel and Gretel fairy tale of a lost brother and sister and their encounter with a hungry witch will open Jan. 13. Tickets for these shows are in a much lower price scale than those for the adult offerings and group rates and fund raising are also available.

Playhouse on the Hudson, which can honestly boast the reputation of being Orange County's only professional dinner and children's theatre, is located just one mile off the Cornwall exit of Route 9W.

Plan Honor Roll

Mail order and phone reservations are now being accepted, and those who so desire may help support this new cultural venture by becoming a yearly booster, patron, subscriber, life member or stockholder. Plans are in the works to honor supporters by placing their names in the theatre's honor roll—to be framed in the lobby.

Says director Neil Love: "The opening of each and every successive evening will be an evening to remember, we guarantee. We'd like you, you and you to be there . . . so, come on down, and join us!"

TV's Highlights and Sidelights

CAROL CHANNING AND WALTER MATTHAU, the stars of ABC-TV's Carol Channing and 101 Men, will stroll into your living room Nov. 16 in what promises to be one of the season's brightest specials.

JOHN FORSYTHE AND MURRAY HAMILTON star in the Hallmark Hall of Fame adaptation of "A Bell for Adano" over NBC-TV tonight, Saturday, Nov. 11.

The ever charming Carol Channing and that most marvelous of guys, Walter Matthau, are the big news in the lively art of television for this week. Carol, who has helloed her last Dolly, is bringing her TV special, Carol Channing and 101 Men, to ABC next Thursday, Nov. 16. Comedian Matthau has been cast as all the leading men to Miss Channing's takeoffs on Mary Pickford, Theda Bara and Pearl White.

Skits for the special involve Matthau as a sort of Francis X. Bushman to Channing's Pickford, a throng-sandaed Antony to her Theda Bara Cleopatra, and a Lon Chaney weirdo type with fangs and claws for the Pearl White scene. They'll also do a stand-up comic and straight man bit for the show and Matthau, who's in the movie version of "Hello Dolly" with Barbra Streisand, will sing "Dolly" to Carol on the home screen.

With Matthau singing and dancing for the first time, Channing clowning, and Eddy Arnold and the U. S. Air Force Cadet Choral also scheduled to appear, Thursday night looks like stay-at-home night for area viewers.

News out of Channel 5 this week is that Mayor John V. Lindsay will be host and moderator of a new weekly interview and audience participation program on WNEW-TV. Program will be called "With Mayor Lindsay" and will debut in color from 10:30 to 11 p. m. tomorrow, Nov. 12.

Hiz Honor plans to tape each program a few hours before air time and the format will be flexible. Basically, it'll consist of a 4 or 5 minute commentary by Lindsay on timely local events or governmental developments of public interest and concern. There'll also be questions from the studio audience, a guest interview, and more questions.

This Sunday, the Mayor will trade punches or compliments with McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation and former foreign policy adviser to President Kennedy and Johnson. Bundy's main interest these days is to develop plans to decentralize the city's public school system.

This series may well be a milestone. It is not only a new dimension in public service broadcasting, with the Mayor conducting a dialogue with his constituents—but Lindsay is an effective performer and, by his own admission, a frustrated actor.

Lindsay himself sees it as another step in bringing the government closer to the people.

The people may very well look upon it as an opportunity to watch a personable and handsome man of much charm and intellect at work.

Previewing the week coming up on television, TEMPO sampled the offerings by the major networks; found that what's happening on TV is this:

TONIGHT (Saturday, Nov. 11) would seem to offer something for the tastes of everyone. Hallmark Hall of Fame begins its 17th season of specials with an adaptation of the best-selling novel, Broadway play and motion picture, "A Bell for Adano." John Forsythe stars as Major Joppol of World War II's American occupation forces in Italy. It's at 7:30 on CBS.

Movie buffs will welcome Yul Brynner as a mean maverick of the post-Civil War era in "Invitation to a Gunfight" on Saturday night at the Movies, NBC's 9 o'clock offering.

And it's beauty contest time again on CBS at 10 p. m. with The Miss Teenage America Pageant coming from the Dallas Apparel Mart. Contestants number 64 and the hostess is singer Jane Powell, the master of ceremonies is Dean Jones, and special guest star is Jimmy Durante.

Sunday, Nov. 12, brings Part III of "Pollyanna" to NBC's "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" at 7:30 p. m. Those who were on hand for Parts I and II know it stars Hayley Mills, Jane Wyman, James Drury, Richard Egan, Karl Malden, Donald Crisp and Agnes Moorehead.

On Sunday, also, ABC offers its regular Sunday Night Movie at 9 p. m. This week it's "The New Interns" starring Michael Callan, Dean Jones, Barbara Eden, Inger Stevens, George Segal and Stefanie Powers in the 1964 film of fledgling doctors in a big city hospital.

Retired General James M. Gavin, just returned from a trip to Vietnam, will Meet the Press in a live interview from Washington, from 1-1:30 on NBC.

"Cortez and the Legend" is one of the better works on the Saga of Western Man series. After lingering on Aztec works of art while the narrator sets the scene, the program moves vividly and sometimes violently to document the invasion of Mexico by Hernando Cortez, and an army of 600. An excellent example of how to teach history and entertain. Of particular interest is the way in which opposing forces are vocally documented with David Carradine as the Mexican and Kirk Douglas as the Spaniard. It's an ABC repeat at 3 p. m.

The second Public Broadcast Laboratory show focuses on Vietnam and has a face-to-face confrontation among 11 Congressmen, whose views range from warlike hawk to gentle dove. Edward P. Morgan moderates the discussion, held at Georgetown University, and seen on NET channel at 8:30 p. m.

BEST BET — Somehow The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour manages to keep a high standard of satirical spoofing. Good guest line-ups help. Sunday it's James Mason, appearing as Kubla Khan with Tom as Marco Polo ("China? I've been on the road four years, boy have I got laundry for you," he says); Barbara Feldon singing and dancing "Bonnie and Clyde" and playing a princess in the sketch; Jimmie Rodgers singing "Child of Clay" and dueting with Tom, "Flying Saucers," a cute song Rodgers wrote for his children; and a brilliant young impressionist, David Frye, who imitates people like Gregory Peck, Henry Fonda, William Buckley Jr., LBJ, and "the original Bugs Bunny" Robert Kennedy. Tom and Dick sing about "Vulgar" Boatmen. 9-10 (CBS).

The kids in your family will probably enjoy Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies of 1967 Monday night at 8 p. m. This Nov. 13 NBC offering will show highlights of the company's 31st ice show spectacle from the Oakland-Alameda Coliseum in California. And it has Ed Ames, Daniel Boone's Indian friend, as singing host.

Stay tuned to NBC at 9 p. m. Monday if you're a Frank Sinatra and/or Ella Fitzgerald fan. A Man and His Music plus Ella plus Jobim means simply an hour of musical entertainment by Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald and Brazilian guitarist Antonio Carlos Jobim.

Regulars will know that 10 p. m. Monday brings The Carol Burnett Show to CBS. Richard Chamberlain, of Dr. Kildaire fame, is guest this time around. On hand, too, will be singer Gloria Loring, with regulars Lyle Waggoner, Harvey Korman and Vicki Lawrence.

The regular Tuesday Night at the Movies at 9 p. m. on Nov. 14 on NBC is geared for the younger set. Film is "Tammy and the Doctor," starring Sandra Dee, Peter Fonda and Macdonald Carey in the story of Tammy's crush on a physician when her companion falls ill. It all took place back in 1963.

The Hollywood Palace that same night on ABC at 10 o'clock has Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme as hosts for two comedians, a ballet and an acrobatic team.

TEMPO particularly recommends Tuesday's CBS News Special at 10 p. m. It's a repeat of the highly acclaimed "Eric Hoffer: The Passionate State of Mind."

The kids have it all to themselves again on Wednesday evening. Androcles and the Lion is the Richard Rodgers musical adaptation of the George Bernard Shaw play about an animal-loving tailor in ancient Rome on NBC at 7:30. Cast includes Norman Wisdom, Noel Coward, Ed Ames, Inga Swenson, Geoffrey Holder (the lion) and Kurt Kaszner.

The adults can take over the set later for The Kraft Music Hall on NBC at 9 p. m., with Tony Randall, Walter Winchell and Cab Calloway, and The Movie Night Special on ABC at the same hour, "Dial M. for Murder," a two-hour TV adaptation. (Continued on Page 24, Col. 1)

Arts and Antiques Attract Ulsterites

Add to such area exhibitors as Saugertiesian Karl F. Wede, Hyde Park's David Ordway, Rock Tavern's Ronald Burke and Monroe's John Dornes, at next week's Arts and Antiques Festival in Madison Square Garden, a group of artisans from the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen. Several members of the art colony group, mostly handweavers, have been invited to show work in the spectacular show which opens Nov. 15 to mark the final exhibition of all time at the soon-to-disappear Garden.

The show is an unusual first in dozens of categories and there has never been anything like it before in the venerable old sports arena — or anywhere else, for that matter. It'll be open every day through Nov. 21 from 1 to 11 p. m.; will feature as special showings the works of 150 contemporary artists, nine separate exhibits from around the globe, and exhibitions by some 300 antiques dealers.

Already, organizations and clubs from all over Ulster and Dutchess are arranging charter bus trips to the big event, where anyone may browse and shop through centuries of man-made treasures in china, glass, clocks, jewelry, furniture, prints, buttons and primitives.

The Woodstock Guild Shop is offering a number of discount tickets for admission to the show and a spokesman for the group notes that no lover of art and antiques will want to miss this chance to see a cross section of the art of 6,000 fascinating years.

Among the attractions will be wood carvings of Ken Snyder, a West Virginia craftsman, whose statuette of two pioneer women is seen in the photo at bottom left. He is one of the many fine artisans from craft guilds and state cultural centers across the country who will be exhibiting work at the Festival.

Other crafts represented will include embroidery, tapestry, glass, enamel and weaving. Photo at center right shows magnificent purple and blue Tiffany shade on a handsome base from the exceptional collection of Beatrice Weiss of New York City. This iridescent glass rates as among the finest ever produced by the inimitable master of Art Glass. It is also, for many, a sterling example of early or pre-Pop Art; bearing the unmistakable influence of Beardsley and the imprint of avant-garde decorating. Philharmonic Features Trampler, Duo

BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Behind the sophisticated facade of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra—at least within the environs of Ulster County—stand the Kingston Series. The Series, in bringing four Monday evening subscription concerts in November, January, March and May to the stage of the Community Theatre here, assure programs of musical merit for area lovers of classical compositions.

The Philharmonic opens its new season of subscription concerts this coming Monday evening, Nov. 13, at the Community. House lights will dim at 8:30 p. m. and stage lights will blaze as director Claude Monteux makes his entrance to wield the baton for the symphony orchestra, one of the finest and most rapidly developing in the country today.

ADELE ADDISON

In recent years, these Monday night concerts have become a "must" for many in this area—and more than one patron or family of patrons bemoans the fact that the series does not run longer. It is not so much that fine music is not available in the area if one searches it out, but that these particular concerts are exceedingly well performed and offer an opportunity for a night out that is difficult to excel, short of traveling to Manhattan. While musically attuned adults could be expected to sing the praises of the concerts, more and more youngsters are learning to enjoy good music by accompanying their parents to these programs. Today teenagers are beginning to make up no small part of the audience.

Classed With Best

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra can take proper pride in the fact that its conductor and musicians have been classed with such outstanding symphonies as the Louisville, Indianapolis and Miami orchestras.

It has achieved this rating under unusual circumstances since its home base is simple not one city in the Mid-Hudson Valley, but rather the entire region encompassed in that valley. That it has served that region and served it well—with distinctive ability—is attested to by its growing reputation.

The 1967-68 season will be composed of the four concerts spanning the period of seven months mentioned above, and featuring an outstanding roster of guest soloists and artists. Next week's concert offers Walter Trampler, viola. Other guests slated to perform as the season progresses are: Alice Smiley, violin; Vronsky and Babin, piano duo; and Adele Addison, soprano.

At all programs, Maestro Monteux will conduct.

Major works programmed for the Kingston subscription concerts include such masterpieces as Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4, A major, Op. 90 ("Italian"); Bartok's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, No. 1; Brahms' Symphony No. 4, E minor, Op. 98; Overture, "Benvenuto Cellini" by Berlioz; and Schumann's "Concertstück for 4 Horns and Orchestra," along with "Symphony No. 5, Op. 47" by Shostakovich.

Before coming to this area director Monteux served as symphony orchestra conductor in central Ohio and director of a concerts program in New York City. He has lent his formidable talents to organizing chamber music groups and serving as guest conductor along the Eastern seaboard and in its major cities.

Shows Considerable Growth

Since taking over the reins of the local philharmonic some eight years ago, he has used his tremendous energies to stimulate the growth of the area orchestra—and it has grown by leaps and bounds, and by strings and brass. The classics as played by this group stand as music of the finest quality, and what was once a small local orchestra can now boast of thorough professionalism. The listening audiences have increased in fantastic numbers, as well, and the number of appearances by the group have been expanded tremendously. In addition to the Kingston concerts, the orchestra presents other subscription series in Poughkeepsie and Newburgh . . . and also gives many special concerts.

Monteux is as fine a flutist as he is a conductor and, in this capacity, has performed in many European capitals. He has served as soloist with the London Symphony Orchestra, for example.

He has also given a command performance at the White House, recitals at Carnegie Hall, and appeared with the NBC Symphony of the Air, the Metropolitan Opera, City Center Opera and

New York City Ballet. Abroad, he has been sought out to conduct such symphony orchestra's as those in London, Brussels and Berlin. One of that growing breed of musicians who compose as well as play, Monteux has several pieces for the flute to his credit and is well known as a recording artist.

He follows the rich musical traditions left him by his father, the late Pierre Monteux, famed French conductor, and his mother, Germaine Monteux, concert pianist in her own right.

As for this season's guest soloists here, they are as distinguished a group as any audience could possibly desire.

Was Teenage Prodigy

Walter Trampler, who will bring his viola to the Community stage this coming Monday night, has been singularly honored by having many solo viola pieces composed especially for him. His musical background is lengthy; goes back to the age of 17 when he toured Europe as a member of the Strub Quartet. Before he reached voting age, he was sitting in the first violinist chair of the Berlin Radio Symphony. Less than 20 years ago, he founded the famed New Music Quartet and, in recent years, he has been applauded as a featured soloist with the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico, and with the Budapest and Juilliard String Quartets. Critically acclaimed at the Aspen Festival and in four consecutive appearances with the New York Philharmonic, he has been lionized by Manhattan music critics.

Like Monteux, he has appeared at the White House; recently performed at a State Dinner there at the invitation of President and Mrs. Johnson. He comes to the Community stage from his present position as professor at New York City's Juilliard School of Music.

Trampler also holds the distinction of having performed a more extensive repertoire of viola music than has been played under normal circumstances in many years.

He has often been known to offer unusual variations in his programs by including selections on the viola d'amore, an instrument infrequently heard in this day and age.

With Trampler as guest soloist Nov. 13, the Kingston program will offer the music of Mendelssohn, Bloch and R. Strauss.

Smiley to Appear

The local series continues with the second concert on Jan. 22, when violinist Alice Smiley will appear as the guest artist. Mrs. Smiley, in addition to being concert mistress of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, is also the leader of the Hudson Valley String Quartet and the Gowanoy Trio. This latter group is expected to debut next spring at Manhattan's Lincoln Center.

The violinist is a graduate of Juilliard School of Music, where she was a scholarship winner.

She has taught at such major colleges as Bard, Vassar and Bennington, and appeared as soloist with orchestras from coast to coast.

The third concert at the Broadway movie house is scheduled March 18 and will feature the piano duo of Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, Russian-born American citizens who debuted in this country in the late 1930's at New York City's famed Town Hall. To this keyboard twosome went the exceptional honor of being chosen among the first artists to perform at Lincoln Center in Manhattan, as that new performing arts complex celebrated its opening week. Critics often allude to them as "the most brilliant two-piano team of our generation," and the great Rachmaninoff once transcribed his Symphonic Dances, Opus 45 for duo-piano in their honor.

During the past two decades or so, they have given more than 1,000 concerts in this country and Canada and have appeared frequently in Europe.

VIOLINIST WALTER TRAMPLER

The final Kingston concert in Early May will present Adele Addison, who began her musical studies and career on a scholarship to Westminster Choir College in New Jersey. To her credit, also, is the coveted and highly rated vocal scholarship of the Berkshire Music School at Tanglewood, which she won against stiff competition. After further study at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, she began appearing in leading roles with the New England Opera Company and the Chicago Symphony. A tour of France with a choral group saw her performing as soloist before an enthusiastic audience of some 9,000 in the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris.

Bernstein Favorite

Miss Addison was Leonard Bernstein's personal choice as one of the artists to open the new Philharmonic Hall in Lincoln Center five years ago this fall. She has also been a performer at the Casals Festival and with the Israel Philharmonic in Tel Aviv.

She will fit the May 6 concert in Kingston into a tight schedule which will take her to New York, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland and many other cities this year.

Last year the Ford Foundation awarded the Hudson Valley Philharmonic a $250,000 matching grant which must be met within five years. That goal came closer this week with the announcement that the Philharmonic has just received a gift of $20,000—helping to bring its total to some $180,000.

Still, to achieve the end goal within the time limit set, are residents must lend their support to the fall subscription campaign. Indications are that they are doing so and reports from the Society's offices in Uptown Kingston indicate a banner season.

There is no doubt whatsoever that the Philharmonic is deserving of such support, for it has grown with this area and contributed to that growth in unexcelled cultural terms and a totally worthwhile programs.

Philharmonic Features Trampler, Duo

BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Behind the sophisticated facade of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra—at least within the environs of Ulster County—stand the Kingston Series. The Series, in bringing four Monday evening subscription concerts in November, January, March and May to the stage of the Community Theatre here, assure programs of musical merit for area lovers of classical compositions.

The Philharmonic opens its new season of subscription concerts this coming Monday evening, Nov. 13, at the Community. House lights will dim at 8:30 p. m. and stage lights will blaze as director Claude Monteux makes his entrance to wield the baton for the symphony orchestra, one of the finest and most rapidly developing in the country today.

ADELE ADDISON

In recent years, these Monday night concerts have become a "must" for many in this area—and more than one patron or family of patrons bemoans the fact that the series does not run longer. It is not so much that fine music is not available in the area if one searches it out, but that these particular concerts are exceedingly well performed and offer an opportunity for a night out that is difficult to excel, short of traveling to Manhattan. While musically attuned adults could be expected to sing the praises of the concerts, more and more youngsters are learning to enjoy good music by accompanying their parents to these programs. Today teenagers are beginning to make up no small part of the audience.

Classed With Best

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra can take proper pride in the fact that its conductor and musicians have been classed with such outstanding symphonies as the Louisville, Indianapolis and Miami orchestras.

It has achieved this rating under unusual circumstances since its home base is simple not one city in the Mid-Hudson Valley, but rather the entire region encompassed in that valley. That it has served that region and served it well—with distinctive ability—is attested to by its growing reputation.

The 1967-68 season will be composed of the four concerts spanning the period of seven months mentioned above, and featuring an outstanding roster of guest soloists and artists. Next week's concert offers Walter Trampler, viola. Other guests slated to perform as the season progresses are: Alice Smiley, violin; Vronsky and Babin, piano duo; and Adele Addison, soprano.

At all programs, Maestro Monteux will conduct.

Major works programmed for the Kingston subscription concerts include such masterpieces as Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4, A major, Op. 90 ("Italian"); Bartok's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, No. 1; Brahms' Symphony No. 4, E minor, Op. 98; Overture, "Benvenuto Cellini" by Berlioz; and Schumann's "Concertstück for 4 Horns and Orchestra," along with "Symphony No. 5, Op. 47" by Shostakovich.

Before coming to this area director Monteux served as symphony orchestra conductor in central Ohio and director of a concerts program in New York City. He has lent his formidable talents to organizing chamber music groups and serving as guest conductor along the Eastern seaboard and in its major cities.

Shows Considerable Growth

Since taking over the reins of the local philharmonic some eight years ago, he has used his tremendous energies to stimulate the growth of the area orchestra—and it has grown by leaps and bounds, and by strings and brass. The classics as played by this group stand as music of the finest quality, and what was once a small local orchestra can now boast of thorough professionalism. The listening audiences have increased in fantastic numbers, as well, and the number of appearances by the group have been expanded tremendously. In addition to the Kingston concerts, the orchestra presents other subscription series in Poughkeepsie and Newburgh... and also gives many special concerts.

Monteux is as fine a flutist as he is a conductor and, in this capacity, has performed in many European capitals. He has served as soloist with the London Symphony Orchestra, for example.

He has also given a command performance at the White House, recitals at Carnegie Hall, and appeared with the NBC Symphony of the Air, the Metropolitan Opera, City Center Opera and

New York City Ballet. Abroad, he has been sought out to conduct such symphony orchestra's as those in London, Brussels and Berlin. One of that growing breed of musicians who compose as well as play, Monteux has several pieces for the flute to his credit and is well known as a recording artist.

He follows the rich musical traditions left him by his father, the late Pierre Monteux, famed French conductor, and his mother, Germaine Monteux, concert pianist in her own right.

As for this season's guest soloists here, they are as distinguished a group as any audience could possibly desire.

Was Teenage Prodigy

Walter Trampler, who will bring his viola to the Community stage this coming Monday night, has been singularly honored by having many solo viola pieces composed especially for him. His musical background is lengthy; goes back to the age of 17 when he toured Europe as a member of the Strub Quartet. Before he reached voting age, he was sitting in the first violinist chair of the Berlin Radio Symphony. Less than 20 years ago, he founded the famed New Music Quartet and, in recent years, he has been applauded as a featured soloist with the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico, and with the Budapest and Juilliard String Quartets. Critically acclaimed at the Aspen Festival and in four consecutive appearances with the New York Philharmonic, he has been lionized by Manhattan music critics.

Like Monteux, he has appeared at the White House; recently performed at a State Dinner there at the invitation of President and Mrs. Johnson. He comes to the Community stage from his present position as professor at New York City's Juilliard School of Music.

Trampler also holds the distinction of having performed a more extensive repertoire of viola music than has been played under normal circumstances in many years.

He has often been known to offer unusual variations in his programs by including selections on the viola d'amore, an instrument infrequently heard in this day and age.

With Trampler as guest soloist Nov. 13, the Kingston program will offer the music of Mendelssohn, Bloch and R. Strauss.

Smiley to Appear

The local series continues with the second concert on Jan. 22, when violinist Alice Smiley will appear as the guest artist. Mrs. Smiley, in addition to being concert mistress of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, is also the leader of the Hudson Valley String Quartet and the Gowanos Trio. This latter group is expected to debut next spring at Manhattan's Lincoln Center.

The violinist is a graduate of Juilliard School of Music, where she was a scholarship winner. She has taught at such major colleges as Bard, Vassar and Bennington, and appeared as soloist with orchestras from coast to coast.

Lyceum Series Continues With Pianist Guralnik

Pianist Robert Guralnik will be the featured artist at Orange County Community College, Middletown, on Nov. 15 for an 8:30 p. m. concert by the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Little Symphony. The program, part of the 1967-68 Lyceum Series at OCCC, is open to the public.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

AS RIGHT REPORTED, E. F. BARNES & CO., INC., NEW YORK

There Are Calories . . . And There Are Calories

"Every calorie around this house is getting used these days," beamed the formerly heavy-weight housewife, who added: "Luckily my favorite kind, these days, aren't edible. They're those units of heat we now get to enjoy, instead of waste, since we put in a complete electric heating system."

Improved efficiency follows like day after night according to a utility spokesman, particularly when there is also proper insulation.

"Our efficiency, you know, is 100. With an unbeatable—and unequalable start like that, where do you look to make electric heating even better

"You'll look—as we did—to the builders. To construct, or reconstruct, a dwelling that complements, that helps you utilize the letter-perfect method that is electric heating. Naturally, it's going to cut your fuel bills. But I'd say the main reason is the insulation, by assuring no drafts or hot spots, is taking a lot of unnecessary stress out of daily living. Lets you save your energies for whatever problems you already have. No sense adding the heating system to them, when (by investing in electric heating) you can get a head start on what promises to become not just the easiest, but eventually the mass market choice."

He also makes the point that electric heating equipment "can be expected to last the life of the house." And he adds: "Incidence of maintenance is also extremely low. That's because there are few or no moving parts and little or no wear and tear." Or in other words: with electric heating all the calories add up . . . to a comfortable warm house.

QUESTION BOX

Question: When will we be able to find apartments with electric heating? It sounds good, but I keep hearing about it for private houses only. I've always preferred apartment living personally.

Answer: All we can say is look around, check the real estate listings in your paper. . . maybe consult an agent. Because there certainly are electrically heated apartments; in fact at last count there were nearly half a million of them in the United States. And the range is all the way from the one rental unit type (with the owner occupying the premises too) to the world's tallest apartment.

Question: What does the term "resistance heating" mean? I've seen it in ads, but without an explanation.

Answer: Let's take a very popular baseboard type of heating — with thermostats in each room—as an example. Inside the metal unit there is a network of wiring. Cool air enters at the bottom and is warmed by electricity passing through the wire network. With this method, you can vary temperatures from room to room. And get a result (even at ceilings height) of not more than half a degree variation from the thermostat setting.

Question: Which is the best type of electric heat to put in where there are small children, so they won't get into it?

Answer: Whatever type your contractor recommends is the right type for you to put in. He knows the vagaries of your house's construction. Maybe he'll recommend a combination. The point is, suitability to the house is where expert selection can serve you better. As to suitability for children. . . all electric heating systems are fine with children. The units don't get more than comfortably warm to the touch at any time, even if you just naturally like very warm rooms.

Question: What's the staggered payment plan for electric heating?

Answer: In most areas, the utility company gladly estimates your annual usage and for all electricity use, not just heat, then they divide it into equal payments so you don't get socked during the heavy-use winter months. Very convenient.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

There Are Calories . . . And There Are Calories

"Every calorie around this house is getting used these days," beamed the formerly heavy-weight housewife, who added: "Luckily my favorite kind, these days, aren't edible. They're those units of heat we now get to enjoy, instead of waste, since we put in a complete electric heating system."

Improved efficiency follows like day after night according to a utility spokesman, particularly when there is also proper insulation.

"Our efficiency, you know, is 100. With an unbeatable—and unequalable start like that, where do you look to make electric heating even better

"You'll look—as we did—to the builders. To construct, or reconstruct, a dwelling that complements, that helps you utilize the letter-perfect method that is electric heating. Naturally, it's going to cut your fuel bills. But I'd say the main reason is the insulation, by assuring no drafts or hot spots, is taking a lot of unnecessary stress out of daily living. Lets you save your energies for whatever problems you already have. No sense adding the heating system to them, when (by investing in electric heating) you can get a head start on what promises to become not just the easiest, but eventually the mass market choice."

He also makes the point that electric heating equipment "can be expected to last the life of the house." And he adds: "Incidence of maintenance is also extremely low. That's because there are few or no moving parts and little or no wear and tear." Or in other words: with electric heating all the calories add up . . . to a comfortable warm house.
